STRIKE ORDER IS AWAITED BY MITCHELL'S MEN

An Industrial Army of 150,000 Miners Willing to Quit Work to Enforce Their Leader's Demands.

SENATOR HANNA SAYS THE SITUATION IS DELICATE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Philadelphia, May 4.—A strike of anthracite coal miners involving about 150,000 men and boys in the eastern part of Pennsylvania seems unavoidable, despite the efforts to prevent it. The operators have unqualifiedly refused the miners' demands for an eight-hour day, the weighing of coal at the mines, and an advance in wages.

The Civic Federation, which succeeded in bringing the miners and operators together in conference, can do nothing more unless asked by both parties to the dispute to arbitrate their differences.

Senator Marcus A. Hanna, president of the conciliation committee of the Civic Federation, who is in this city paying a visit to Clement A. Griscom, president of the International Navigation Company, today spoke freely on the subject. Senator Hanna regards the situation as extremely delicate, but hopes for developments which will render further discussion of the subject between the opposing parties a possibility.

Senator Hanna's Views.

Mr. Hanna said it would be unwise for him to express an opinion as to the probable result of the meeting of the executive committee of the United Mine Workers for the three anthracite districts called for next Wednesday at Scranton, Pa., by National President John Mitchell.

Senator Hanna said he was officially notified today by Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic Federation of the statement issued last night by President Mitchell in New York. He immediately wired Mr. Easley instructing him to refrain from calling another meeting of the conciliation committee as that procedure would be useless in view of the latest developments.

Senator Hanna said he had been awaiting a report from the sub-committee of the conciliation committee, but that Mr. Mitchell's statement had anticipated it.

"I want to emphasize the fact," continued Senator Hanna, "that the conferences between the operators and miners were satisfactory. These conferences were held and the proceedings were conducted in the best spirit. I think the operators formed a favorable impression of Mr. Mitchell and gave him credit for honesty and sincerity in his efforts to change the condition of the miners.

Better Understanding Desirable.

"On the other hand, Mr. Mitchell appreciated the consideration shown him and the interests he represents. Unless a bitter and protracted strike should occur I believe much good will come of the conferences. I am of the opinion that they will lead to better conditions between capital and labor.

"I am in favor of meetings between employer and employes to consider differences. I want the people to thoroughly understand the position of the Civic Federation. It can do only two things: Exert its influence to prevent a strike or arbitrate when a rupture has occurred at the request of both parties to the dispute. In this case the Civic Federation has done all within its province. It brought together, through its conciliation committee, the representatives of the miners' union and the operators.

"In the evolution of things rapidly taking place in this country the conference of employers and employes is one of the conditions that must necessarily be a part of it. The progress and development and improvement of the laboring class."

Operators Acted Sensibly.

Asked if the Civic Federation experienced any difficulty in arranging the conferences between the operators and miners, Senator Hanna said:

"On the contrary I find the operators quite willing to go half way in this matter. They are all sensible, broad guage business men, who, while they desire to protect their own interests, are wise enough to see the drift of things.

"The peculiar situation of the anthracite mining industry," continued the senator, "makes the proposition more difficult. The combination of the railroad and mining interests brings forward the question of tonnage, and this, with threatened competition from the enormous production of bituminous coal, constitute matters which must be considered. This is the foundation of the operators' argument. It is not a mere selfish interest that impels them to the stand they have taken, but the proposition is difficult to explain to the rank and file of the workers in and about the mines. It is my hope that when they are educated to understand these conditions they may be considerate and not governed by prejudice in future actions.

Miners Hard to Control.

"If my advice had been followed a longer time would have been taken before the present crisis was reached, in order that these things could be explained and better understood. President Mitchell's statement was hastened by the fact that scraps of information were given to the public embarrassing him with his men. When it is considered that two-thirds of the mine workers are foreigners, speaking six, eight or ten different languages, it can be readily understood that they are difficult to control."

Referring to President Mitchell's visit to Washington last week, Senator Hanna said: "I saw Mr. Mitchell in Washington and discussed with him another proposition, but that has been obviated by the existing situation."

HAZLETON, PA., May 4.—The impression prevails among the miners of the Hazleton district that there will be a general strike as a result of the failure of the operators and the representatives of the United Mine Workers to come to an agreement. If the district executive boards decide on Wednesday at Scranton to order a suspension of work the members of the union hereabouts will, it is believed, obey the order to a man.

Union Is Very Strong.

It is conservatively estimated that three-fourths of the employes in and about the mines in this region are organized and if a strike is declared operations will be brought to a standstill at every colliery. Many of the mines were idle during the greater part of the winter on account of the floods and it is claimed that the men are not financially able to stand a long suspension. The miners, however, declare that they can live cheaply in the summer and that the coal companies, with only a small supply of anthracite on hand, will be less able to endure a strike than their employes.

Commercial business in this section has been almost at a standstill for the last six weeks on account of the fear of a strike.

District President Duffy and the miners from here who accompanied him to New York have not yet returned home. While none of the operators will make a state-

SENATOR QUAY INSISTS HE HAS NO CANDIDATE

But Pennypacker's Boom Is Well Received in the Quaker City.

TAKING MONTGOMERY COUNTY BY STORM

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 4.—Senator Quay left for Washington at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Senator Penrose went to the station to see him off. When asked what he cared to say about the gubernatorial situation, Col. Quay replied:

"Nothing, except that I have no candidate for governor."

He declined to discuss the boom now on for Judge Pennypacker. Messrs. Quay, Penrose and Durham last night burned midnight oil. The three were together in Col. Quay's room at the Stratford until long after midnight. What they discussed was not made public, but it is believed the entire campaign—congressional, legislative, gubernatorial and the county contests—was exhaustively reviewed.

Notwithstanding the late hours of last night Senator Penrose and Mr. Durham were again with Col. Quay this morning. Quite a number of county leaders from the west also called and were seen by the senator.

The announcement that Judge Pennypacker might become a factor in the gubernatorial situation has been well received. Republicans, regardless of faction, express pleasure at the fact that one so eminent, so distinguished in his profession, holding as he does the confidence and respect of all classes, is being considered in this important connection. The only objectors to the nomination of Judge Pennypacker are Democrats. They prefer Attorney General John P. Elkin.

NORRISTOWN, PA., May 4.—Many conferences were held today by Republican leaders on the question of incorporating resolutions indorsing Judge Pennypacker with those which will be adopted commendatory of Gen. John W. Schall at next Tuesday's state delegate convention here. The subject is a troublesome one. Heretofore it was decided to remain silent on the county's choice for governor, to give more effect to Gen. Schall's candidacy for secretary of internal affairs. Recently the Pennypacker sentiment has grown so pronounced that many of its exponents are eager for the convention to give it a due meed of expression.

United States District Attorney Holland today said he is inclined to adhere to the original plan of passing over the governorship in silence. Mr. Holland will not attend the convention as a delegate. He says he understands Judge Pennypacker is a favorite here and that if the judge's adherents can sway the convention into indorsing their sentiment, it will be well and good. So far as Mr. Holland knows, no efforts will be made to contest such a course.

ARCHBISHOP IN DANGER.

New York Prelate's Failure to Rally Causes Grave Fears as to His Recovery.

NEW YORK, May 4.—There is much concern felt over the case of Archbishop Corrigan, as Dr. Keyes, the attending physician, announced tonight after his visit to the bedside of the prelate that his condition is still dangerous and there is a possibility it may become more critical.

"Archbishop Corrigan is by no means out of danger," said Dr. Keyes, "and his weakness continues. There are no favorable indications; he shows absolutely no interest in worldly affairs and evinces no liveliness whatever. If he did evince a desire to know what was going on in the world it would indicate that he was regaining his lost strength. But such is not the case. There was hope that he would even express a desire to get up, sick as he is, but he has not shown the slightest inclination to get up, sleeping constantly."

Big Smelters Change Hands.

JOPLIN, MO., May 4.—The Jersey Zinc Company has purchased the C. C. Cockrell and C. A. Prime western smelters, at Gas City, Kan. The consideration is said to have been $540,000. The new owners will enlarge the Cockrell plant.

HOLLAND'S YOUNG RULER IN A CRITICAL CONDITION

Small Hopes Are Entertained for the Recovery of the Beloved Young Queen of the Dutch.

THE HAGUE, May 5.—It was announced from Castle Loo at midnight last night that Queen Wilhelmina had been prematurely confined at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Prof. Rosenstein, Dr. Roessingh and the other doctors were in attendance. The queen suffered intense agony.

"At 11 o'clock Sunday evening the condition of her majesty was described as critical, and small hope for her recovery was entertained.

LONDON, May 5.—The tardy official admission of the real nature of the illness of the queen of Holland, which The Hague Associated Press was able to announce April 17 from Amsterdam, may be regarded as an indication of a very grave crisis in her majesty's condition, and coming so suddenly upon the bulletins announcing her imminent recovery, it will cause a shock throughout Europe.

QUEEN WILHELMINA,
Who Is Reported to Be Dying.

Apart from the difficulties surrounding the question of the succession to the throne of Holland the death of Queen Wilhelmina, if this should unhappily occur, would tend to convulse the continent politically. In Germany especially it is a matter of the deepest import. The German press claims that Prince Albrecht of Hohenzollern, the acting regent of Brunswick, is among the nearest in the Dutch succession, and in all the European capitals nervous apprehension exists that the absence of a direct heir to the Dutch throne might precipitate a struggle for the possession of Holland, which in Berlin is regarded as Germany's natural right.

Queen Wilhelmina, the beloved ruler of the Dutch, who is reported to be on her deathbed at Het Loo palace, near Amsterdam, has had more of bright promise and less of fulfillment than that of any ruler of modern times. That this pitiful state of things has come about through no fault of her own is but another element of sadness in the tragic history of her married life.

The simple Dutch people, her subjects, opposed her marriage to Duke Heinrich of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, but when her purpose was definitely announced on October 16, 1900, and afterward, they rendered to him the homage that was the due of the husband of their belived queen.

The marriage took place in the spring of 1901, and was celebrated with all the pomp of which the Dutch people are capable, at the capital city, The Hague. It was a love match, and had all the romantic features which are dear to every woman, be she queen or peasant. The beauties of the capital, which are famous the world over, were greatly enhanced by profuse decorations, her subjects demonstrating in every possible manner the sincere regard in which they held her.

Marital unhappiness has been her lot. It is said the prince consort abused her because, with her Dutch ideas of thrift, she refused to give him money with which to pay his debts. These were numerous and of a character which indicated that he had led rather a reckless life. A separation ensued, but a reconciliation took place through the efforts of Emperor William of Germany and the queen regent, Wilhelmina's mother, who evidently believed in making the best of a bad bargain.

Several weeks ago the queen was taken ill with typhoid fever, this affliction being peculiarly unfortunate in that she was about to become a mother.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER ABASHED BY YOUNG "TEDDY'S" GALLANTRY

Mrs. Roosevelt and Son Mingle With West Virginia Mountain Folk.

PRESIDENT TO JOIN THEM

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cumberland, Md., May 4.—President Roosevelt will go to Deer park tomorrow to join Mrs. Roosevelt and his son Theodore, Jr., who are now at Lake Delawder, in the interior of Garrett county. The latter were driven yesterday from Deer park to Lake Delawder, a distance of about 25 miles, in the same conveyance in which ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland rode during their visit to the same place.

The president will only remain a few days, but the remainder of the party will spend several weeks fishing in what is known as Deep creek for trout.

Young "Teddy" is reported to be enjoying the rustic scenery very much and is making himself perfectly free with the plain mountain folk. A poor farmer's daughter living in a very isolated place in Big Savage mountain, when she learned that the distinguished party was at the lake, plucked a bunch of wild flowers and walked several miles to present them to Ms. Roosevelt.

The latter showed her appreciation of the flowers in kind expressions, and young "Teddy" told the girl that he would like to accompany her when she again went out to pluck the nosegays. The bashful mountain lass made no reply and soon hurried home to tell her parents of the wonderful people that she had seen.

WELCOME RAINS.

Several Dry Western States Visited by Soaking Showers Which Benefit Crops.

OMAHA, NEB., May 4.—The eastern two-thirds of Nebraska was visited by a general rain today and tonight with indications favorable to a continuation. Western Iowa also received relief in a fair soaking. The past 10 days have been very warm and the ground was beginning to feel the effects of the heat, but today's rainfall relieves any apprehension of extreme dry weather, and will put the soil in prime condition.

GUTHRIE, OKLA., May 4.—Drenching rains have been falling over Eastern Oklahoma since early morning, swelling rivers and creeks higher than at any other time this season. Several rivers are rapidly approaching the high-water mark, and there is no sign of a cessation of the downpour. The rain is of incalculable value to the growers of wheat, potatoes and cotton.

May Have Fallen From Train.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., May 4.—(Special.)—An unknown woman, who had been dead several hours, was found alongside the railroad track at Cornwalds this morning. She was not known in that vicinity and it is supposed she fell from a passing train during the night.

ELKIN LOSES DELEGATES IN TWO COUNTIES

Venango Elects Three Men, Who Will Support Sibley.

EX-SENATOR MITCHELL AS "GUM-SHOE" ARTIST

Three state delegates were elected in Venango Saturday, and one was chosen in the Fifth district of Luzerne. The latter will likely support Col. T. A. Watres of Scranton, while those of Venango will vote for Congressman J. C. Sibley or some other candidate in opposition to John P. Elkin.

The fight in Luzerne is close. The convention that selects the delegates will be held today, and Col. Watres' friends say that they will win. The Elkin forces having been working hard in that county.

It is not known whether ex-Senator John G. Mitchell of Jefferson "gum-shoed" among the delegates of Luzerne, but he has been heard of in some western counties, doing work of a quiet nature in the interest of the Stone machine.

Several stories have drifted into Pittsburgh about Mitchell and his efforts in behalf of Elkin. Although he has done much to induce some county leaders to turn delegates over to Elkin, his missionary efforts have not been successful. Mitchell's system of politics is pretty well known through a number of western counties, and it has been impossible for him to accomplish the results desired.

There were two sets of delegates in Venango, but the one representing the regular organization won, and these men will represent the county in the state convention: Peter M. Speer, C. H. Parsons and A. R. Newton. They were not instructed, but will vote for Sibley if his name is presented. If it is not they will support some candidate that is generally satisfactory to the Republicans of the state.

E. Osborne of Franklin and Dr. G. W. Magee of Oil City will receive the nomination for assembly. John P. Emery, who was in the house last session and voted with the insurgents, asked for a renomination, but failed. It is probable that he will be an independent candidate.

Joseph C. Sibley was given the unanimous indorsement of Venango for congress. Col. W. J. Hulings was nominated for state senator. J. R. Steele of Oil City has probably been nominated for county treasurer.

Primaries will be held in Montgomery county this week. It may be that the delegates will decide to support Judge S. W. Pennypacker. The opponents of Elkin are now able to count over 180 delegates who will vote against the attorney general. The indications are that by the latter end of the month there will be upward of 200 delegates pledged against Elkin.

SMALLPOX AGAIN DISCOVERED WITHIN THE PRISON WALLS

Four New Cases Developed Yesterday in Allegheny County Workhouse at Claremont.

MAKES SEVEN IN A WEEK

Four new cases of smallpox were discovered at the Allegheny county workhouse in Claremont yesterday and the prison authorities are now thoroughly alarmed, while the prisoners, among whom the news spread rapidly, are panicstricken. Seven patients from the workhouse are now at the municipal hospital, making 45 now undergoing treatment there. The other three from Claremont were brought to Pittsburgh three days ago.

The most alarming phase of this outbreak of the disease is the fact that three of the four prisoners got the smallpox at the institution; they are not patients who arrived there with the germs already in their system. All but one have been prisoners for more than 30 days, and as the incubation period of the disease is less than that it follows that in the cases of three of the men the germs entered their systems at the workhouse. How much benefit the fumigation and disinfection of the cells will do is problematical, for it is feared that the whole institution may be infected.

The four men sent down yesterday are negroes. They are Charles Brown, George Bruce, William Alexander and George Tyler. Brown, Bruce and Alexander were sent up 30 days ago, and Tyler only five days ago all from Central police station by Magistrate Bernard McKenna. When arraigned before the magistrate the prisoners gave the following addresses: Alexander, rear of No. 27 Federal street; Brown, No. 4 Natchez street; Bruce, Thirty-fourth street and Penn avenue, and Tyler, No. 18 Wylie avenue.

It was said at the workhouse last night that all the cells of the sick men had been disinfected and their bedding burned; that everybody in the institution was vaccinated when the outbreak occurred three days ago, and that therefore future cases that may develop will probably be of a mild type unless perhaps in the case of a prisoner who has been exposed to the disease before entering the workhouse.

Lightning Causes Costly Fire.

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—For a short time this afternoon a terrific storm of wind and rain prevailed in this city and vicinity, causing considerable damage. Lightning resulted in several fires, one of which destroyed the machine shop and a section of the foundry of William and Philip Madart's patent pulley plant in South St. Louis. The loss is estimated at $300,000, partially insured.

Prince Heavy in Ireland.

LONDON, May 4.—Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, who, with the most powerful squadron ever commanded by a German admiral, is on a training cruise of five weeks' duration around the British islands, is now in Irish waters. In company of the Duke of Connaught he will visit the Cork exhibition next Thursday.

THREE MEN KILLED AND MANY INJURED IN SUNDAY WRECKS

Loaded Immigrant Train Crashed Into a Freight on the Baltimore & Ohio Near Rockwood, Pa.

TWO VICTIMS PINNED UNDER LOCOMOTIVE NEAR FREEDOM

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Connellsville, Pa., May 4.—Two were killed and 16 injured, two probably fatally, in a head-on collision between an immigrant train and a fast freight near Rockwood, on the Connellsville division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at 12:50 p. m. today. The trains collided on a straight stretch of track.

The Dead.

A. D VENTURE,
NICOLA SAKEI, Italian immigrants.

The Injured.

B. F. SMALLWOOD, newsboy on the immigrant train; married and lives at Cumberland; crushed through the body; taken to Western Maryland hospital at Cumberland.

DOMINICO PEDAZHEL, Italian; bruised and crushed through the body, badly cut about head; brought to hospital here, where an operation was performed tonight.

W. H. HENSEL, brakeman, of this place; badly sprained legs from a jump down over the bank into the Casselman river; brought to his home here.

CONDUCTOR B. F. TALBOTT of Pittsburgh, seriously injured; insisted on being taken to his home. He has a badly twisted leg, the result of his roll down into the Casselman river.

W. H. SPIKER of Pittsburgh, brakeman on No. 47, knocked through a window and badly hurt. One arm is broken and he is cut and bruised. He also insisted on going home.

The remains of the two dead men were brought here and taken to the morgue. They will probably be buried here.

Forty Italian immigrants, all men, were injured, but none of their injuries were serious enough to necessitate their removal to the hospital.

Jumped from Engines.

Engineer P. F. Freish and Fireman Grant Shoemaker of the freight, and Engineer George Dull and Fireman Means of the passenger, jumped after the two engines were reversed. All four rolled down the steep bank into the Cassilman river. None of them were injured, with the exception of a few bruises.

The scene of the wreck is a half mile east of Rockwood. The immigrant train, in charge of Conductor B. F. Talbott of Pittsburgh, was running as second No. 47. The train was late out of Cumberland and had been given time at the telegraph office along the line. It was hauling ten coaches of Italian immigrants. Fast freight No. 94, east-bound, was hauling 22 loads of merchandise. Conductor J. F. Monohan of the freight got the time on second No. 47 at Rockwood and started his train at a brisk rate out the double track toward Lonon.

Suddenly the engine of the immigrant train gave a shriek of warning and in a moment the crash came. The baggage car and the three coaches next were almost demolished. Almost every compartment was cut and bruised by the shower of broken glass. A number were pinioned beneath the wreckage and their cries for aid, in the foreign tongue, were fearful to hear. The trainmen, aided by the whiting immigrants who were riding in the rear cars, worked hard to release the sufferers.

Under Wreck One Hour.

Smallwood, the newsboy, was with his stock in the baggage car when the crash came. He was in terrible position, and he suffered for almost an hour before he was released. Fire started several times, but was extinguished before any damage was done. The trainmen were soon assisted by the wreck crew from Rockwood. Several Rockwood physicians were hurried to the scene and cared for the injured.

The injured were brought here on a second section of train No. 49 and Padnazel was hurried to the Cottage State hospital in a waiting ambulance. All the injured were detained here, while they will be cared for by the officials of the Baltimore & Ohio until their condition will allow them to proceed to their western destination. Both engines, four coaches of the passenger and three cars of the freight were demolished by the wreck.

The cause of the wreck, as rumored among railroaders here, is that the freight was running a lap on second 47's time when the collision occurred.

Fatal Wreck Near Rochester.

ROCHESTER, PA., May 4.—(Special.)—The relief train, used in carrying railroad men from the Conway yards to their homes in Rochester, was wrecked half way between Freedom and Rochester about 6 o'clock this evening and one man killed and another fatally injured.

The dead:

CHARLES SEWALL, aged 27 years, of Freedom.

Fatally scalded:

ENGINEER ABNER J. STACY, aged 43 years of Freedom.

The train was westbound and was moving at a lively rate of speed, when for some unknown cause, the engine jumped the track. The coach, which was being pushed ahead, broke loose and ran down the track several hundred yards and came to a stop. The engine as soon as freed from the coach tore over the ties and turned completely over, blocking the entire four tracks.

Engineer Stacy and Charles Sewall jumped, but were caught under the falling engine. Sewall was dead when taken out and the physicians attending Stacy at the Beaver Valley General hospital here say he cannot survive.

The "relief" was not Sewall's regular run, but he took it yesterday in order to allow Charles Baumbaugh, the regular fireman, to attend an organization meeting. Sewall was a member of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen No. 574 and is survived by his widow. Stacy is a widower and has five children living at Freedom.

MORO POWER CRUSHED OUT IN BUT ONE BATTLE

Ditches Around Fallen Fort Filled With the Foe's Corpses.

THE FEW SURVIVORS SURRENDER QUICKLY

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

MANILA, May 4.—Gen. Davis, commander of the American forces in the island of Mindanao, cables that the 84 Moros who survived the attack and capture of the Moro fort by the American soldiers in Mindanao yesterday have surrendered, and that the sultan of Bayan, Rajah Muda, Sultan Panda Pandito and a number of the leading dattos were killed in the engagement.

It is impossible to give the total of Moro dead, as a number of them are lying in the tall grass. The fort was defended by 300 men. One officer and seven enlisted men of the American force were killed, while four officers and 39 enlisted men were wounded.

The American forces who attacked the fort numbered 470 men and four mountain guns. It rained hard during the night preceding the attack and the men were without blankets. The battery fired 120 rounds at a range of 1,400 yards.

The assault on the principal fort, reports Gen. Davis, was one of the most gallant performances of American arms in the Philippines, and the regiment of Lieut. Col. Frank D. Baldwin, the Fourth Infantry, deserves the greatest credit for its conduct.

Ditches Full of Moro Dead.

The men of the Fourth infantry had a hand-to-hand struggle with the Moros in the four lines of ditches under the walls of the fort. When the position was captured these ditches were found to be filled with Moro dead. Gen. Davis characterizes the rifle fire of the Americans as excellent, and says he has never witnessed a performance excelling in gallantry and grit the capture of the Moro fort. The good work of the command saved a long and tedious siege, in Gen. Davis' opinion, and it would have been impossible to carry the position without scaling ladders.

After the 84 Moros who survived the assault had marched out of the fort eight others who were concealed there made an unsuccessful break for liberty. Some of the Moro wounded tried to stab the American soldiers who were succoring them.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—The war department this morning received by cable Gen. Davis' report through Gen. Chaffee. In addition to the facts given in the press report from Manila, Gen. Davis says:

"After the 84 surviving Moros marched out this morning as prisoners, and it was understood they were all, eight others who had concealed themselves in rubbish beside the fort made a break for liberty, but none succeeded.

Wounded Stab at Benefactors.

"Some Moro wounded tried to stab soldiers who were trying to help them. It is impossible to state the number of Moros killed, many lying in tall grass.

"I intend to retain the prisoners until two or three small adjacent forts are occupied; then, with your consent, to retain as hostages eight or ten of the principals and release the others.

"I could not have used more men advantageously. Had we sent a strong column it would only have swelled the casualty list.

"One neighboring Datto has already presented himself as a friend, and I expect a general coming in shortly, when the weight of the blow is known. The dead sent to Malabang for burial. In the light of present knowledge, I could have besieged the principal forts and in time forced a surrender, but that probably would have resulted in a sortie for freedom and escape for many. By attacking them, they have been completely crushed—the only kind of lessen these wild Moros seem to be able to profit by.

"I shall invite Sultan Tarlac to pay me a friendly visit, if he does not do so of his own initiative. He has a fort further east in plain sight and of the same strength as was Bayan, on a beautiful tableland 1,000 acres of fine upland rice. I am urging the people to return to its cultivation.

"The result to follow this action is very important, namely: It secures respect for United States authority in the center of Moro savagery."

PRINCESS ATTEMPTED TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Daughter of the Spanish Pretender Threw Herself Into the Tiber.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

ROME, May 4.—Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, has been summoned here owing to the attempt of his daughter, Princess Beatrice de Berrone, to commit suicide by throwing herself into the Tiber.

Princess Beatrice arrived at the Sisting bridge richly attired in evening dress and wearing her jewels. Before throwing herself into the water she made the sign of the cross. The flooded river was flowing quickly and the princess was rescued with difficulty. She was half dead when taken from the water.

The princess refused to disclose her identity and struggled again to throw herself into the river. She was taken to a hospital, where she admitted her name. She declared her motive to have been jealousy of her husband, with whom she had had a violent scene. Princess Beatrice is now suffering from fever.

Princess Elvira, sister of Princess Beatrice, ran away with a painter named Polchi two years ago.

PENNYPACKER WROTE A STORY OF HIS STATE

Pennsylvania's Splendid Place on the Pages of American History.

FIRST IN WAR AND PEACE

A Pioneer in Freedom, Civil and Religious, and a Fortress of Strength in Days of Stress—A Tribute to Senator Quay.

An article appeared in the Atlantic monthly for October, 1901, signed "A Pennsylvanian," lauding Massachusetts and attacking this commonwealth. It was replied to in the Philadelphia Press of Friday, November 29, 1901, by Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker. His letter follows in full:

It is extremely difficult to regard with any seriousness the article which appeared in the "Atlantic Monthly" for October of 1901, upon the "Ills of Pennsylvania."

In my court a situation so frequently recurs that in its main features it has become entirely familiar, and with the first statement of the preliminary facts the sequel is at once forecasted. A well-meaning and kindly old gentleman, whose vigor and intelligence a quarter of a century before won for him a comfortable subsistence in his declining years, but who is approaching that period of advanced maturity when the impressions of names and faces and characters are becoming indistinct, is addressed by a glib and entertaining stranger who assumes the reputable name of some good friend and talks with an assured air of known persons and events. The interview ends in his loss, both in substance and reputation.

Suspicious Circumstances.

There were ample indications in the article itself to have put the "Atlantic Monthly" upon its guard. Its appearance with a view to an approaching election and the desire of the writer to escape identification by keeping his name concealed are facts that ought in themselves to have given warning to the alert. His evidence in the shape of mythical interviews with unidentified farmers, who speak in an unknown dialect, his fling at those who are descended from the men who fought in the revolutionary war, his manifest delight at the hanging of the Quakers upon Boston Common, his affectation of regret at the injury to the financial reputation of a state which has no debt, borrows no money and pays each year $8,000,000 for schools and $2,000,000 for charities, his corrupt English and pat "Augean stables," his description of himself through the guise of a convenient but unnamed friend as "Godly Purity," sufficiently showed that he assumed a garb which did not belong to him, and was narrating as facts material gathered for a purpose, and which could only lead to injury when presented by some responsible person. His article is absolutely discreditable and unworthy. Its presentation in a magazine of good repute, which was once a leader in thought and is still read by many excellent people in Pennsylvania, about which linger the memories of departed worthies whom they revere, is another matter and it is with that aspect of the subject it is proposed to deal.

Commonwealths Compared.

When there are published to the world the untruths "that Philadelphia is the rendezvous of exiles" and that Pennsylvania has a "state of weak moral fiber" it provokes the instinctive question of fairness, whether there is not a touch of hardihood in suggesting that "Massachusetts and Pennsylvania persistently invite comparison." The assumption of superior virtue and achievement is not without precedent. Cotton Mather, while inciting the hanging of witches and Quakers and John Adams and John Quincy Adams in their letters and journals have been illustrious predecessors. Perhaps it may not be uninstructive to examine the foundation upon which the claim rests.

Massachusetts was settled in 1620, Pennsylvania in 1682, and in a race of less than three centuries a start of 62 years is a long lead. Boston is located upon the sea, with a magnificent harbor adapted for all kinds of commerce, while Philadelphia lies 100 miles from the mouth of the Delaware. Each census shows that Massachusetts is steadily falling in rank among the states and Boston among the cities, and that Pennsylvania, which at the time of the revolution was third in population, is surely approaching the first place.

It is manifest that either better governmental or greater opportunities for remuneration for effort, or some equally potent cause, has from the beginning led men to find Pennsylvania more attractive and this conclusion is emphasized when we give attention to the obvious fact that while no Pennsylvanian can ever be persuaded to emigrate to Massachusetts there has been, since the time of Penn, a steady current of people who were willing to forego the advantages, civil or otherwise, of Massachusetts in order that they might improve their condition and ours by coming here. A school was established in Philadelphia in 1698. There was no school in Plymouth for 20 years after the settlement. The free library of James Logan, the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania, the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania hospital, the American Philosophical society, the Academy of the Fine Arts and Peale's museum, are all examples of institutions successfully established here before any similar attempts were made in Boston. The English Bible and Testament, Milton, Shakespeare and Blackstone were all reproduced for the first time in America in Philadelphia, and it is an interesting indication of keenness of literary perception that the earliest book written by Thackeray to be given to the world appeared in the same city.

The constitution of the United States provides for the free exercise of religion and against the establishment of any creed by law. Perhaps no other of its provisions more distinctly marks the divergence between the American idea of the province of government and that of European nations, and more broadly separates the present from the past. Where in America did that view of life originate and when it became a part of the fundamental law which community triumphed and which succumbed?

Freedom in Pennsylvania.

Penn in his frame of government declared that government was "as capable of kindness, goodness and charity as a more private society," and he invited to his province people of all creeds.

Massachusetts, founded as a theocracy from which all who dissented from the established beliefs were expelled, in accepting the principle since embodied in the constitution abandoned her own ideals and accepted the doctrines inculcated and practiced in Pennsylvania.

After the organization of the national government the gravest peril which threatened its integrity and existence was the growth of the institution of slavery. The first American colonizer and lawgiver to appreciate its immorality and disadvantages and eternal shame ought to be accorded to him therefor, was Peter Cornelius Plockhoy, who announced in 1662 that in his colony on the Delaware no slavery should exist. Then came the celebrated Germantown protest of 1688. These announcements occurred in a period when the people of Massachusetts were not only dealing in negro slaves but were selling Indians and even convicted Quakers in the Barbadoes. The Society of Friends soon threw the whole weight of their influence against the institution preventing their members from holding slaves, and at that time they were still in control of the province of Pennsylvania.

First Abolition Society.

The earliest abolition society in the world was organized in Philadelphia in 1774, called "The Pennsylvania Society for Promoting the Abolition of Slavery," and among its members in 1780 were Noah Webster and Thomas Gain of Massachusetts, who even yet could find a home as outlet for their sentiments. When the memorial of this society, supported by one from Friends Annual Meeting, asking for the discouragement of the slave trade and traffic in slaves, was presented to the house of representatives in 1790 it received the support of every member from Pennsylvania and the opposition of Fisher Ames, Jonathan Grout and George Thatcher, one-half of the Massachusetts delegation.

Said Benjamin Rush, writing in 1784:

"It is scarcely 40 years since a few men in Pennsylvania who were branded as enthusiasts first bore testimony against the slavery of the negroes. These principles spread gradually and in the course of a few years were adopted as part of the system of doctrines of the people called Quakers. From them and by their industry they have been propagated by natural means through all the middle and eastern states of America. Pennsylvania has done homage to them in her sovereign and legislative capacity. The slaves of the southern states feel a pleasure when the name of Pennsylvania sounds in their ears, and even the native African has learned to except our state from the execrations he pronounces against Christian tyrants and man thieves."

First to Abolish Slavery.

On March 1, 1780, the legislature of Pennsylvania passed the first American act definitely abolishing slavery. It was through the efforts of Anthony Benezet that England was induced to abolish the slave trade. In 1794 there were enough abolition societies throughout the states of the country to justify a national organization and delegates from Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland met in convention in Philadelphia for the purpose. They assembled in the same city thereafter annually. While ere long Rhode Island, Virginia and Tennessee appear, there is no trace of representation from Massachusetts as late as 1823. When William Lloyd Garrison established the Liberator in Boston in 1831, the anti-slavery views of the Quakers of Pennsylvania had permeated the whole country and in every border county of that state stations on the underground railroad were engaged, not in sounding proclamations, but in seeing to it that escaped slaves were provided with means to reach the St. Lawrence.

Planted Independence.

The principle upon which the revolutionary war was fought to a successful conclusion, that the colonies "cannot be legally taxed but by their own representatives" was thought out and put in concrete form by John Dickinson in his "Letters From a Farmer in Pennsylvania to the Inhabitants of the British Colonies," a book read with avidity all over America and reproduced in Europe. It aroused the colonists to resistance and enabled them to justify their efforts to themselves and before the world. He was given the freedom of the city of Boston, and Nathaniel Ames, in his almanac for 1772, published his portrait, one of the earliest rude attempts at American portraiture, with the legend "The Patriotic American Farmer John Dickinson, Esq., Barrister at law, who with Attic eloquence and Roman spirit hath asserted the liberties of the British colonies in America."

On October 16, 1773, the people of Philadelphia met in the State House yard and adopted a series of resolutions drawn by William Bradford, forbidding the landing of tea from the British ships. These resolutions were forwarded to Boston, whereupon a town meeting was called there on November 6, and they were readopted in the same language. This action led to the famous Boston Tea Party.

Saved by Pennsylvanians.

The turning point of the war was reached in the successes at Trenton and Princeton. Before those events our fortunes were at the lowest ebb. In his oration on Washington, David Ramsay, the contemporary historian, says:

"The army that remained with Gen. Washington scarcely exceeded 3,000 and they were in a most forlorn condition, without tents or blankets or any utensils to dress their provisions * * * In this period when the American army was relinquishing their general, the people giving up the cause, some of their leaders going over to the enemy, and the British commanders succeeding in every enterprise, Gen. Washington did not despair. He slowly retreated before the advancing foe and determined to fall back to Pennsylvania, to Augusta county, Va., and, if necessary, to yonder mountains, where he was resolved in the last extremity to renew the struggle for the independency of his country. While his unconquered mind was brooding on these ideas, 1,000 of the Pennsylvania militia joined him."

In this crisis, when others faltered and were in despair and Washington thought of retreating beyond the Alleghenies to engage in guerilla warfare, which colony was it that sent a reinforcement equal to one-half of the army and enabled him to win?

Bunker Hill and Stony Point.

Would it be unkind to suggest that the difference in the characteristics of the people of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania is well exemplified in the comparison of affairs at Bunker Hill and Stony Point? In the former engagement a Massachusetts general selected an elevation and protected himself by the entrenchments. The British landed at the foot of the hill, marched up, drove the Americans from the field and captured and held the intrenchments. Since that time historians have written and poets have sung, a huge monument was erected, and Daniel Webster delivered and oration, until almost, if not altogether, we are persuaded that in some way which we do not understand, we must have won the battle. It is substantially the only one ever fought in Massachusetts and is cherished excessively. At Stony Point 600 British troops occupied a crest 150 feet high, elaborately fortified. In addition two abattis defended the hill and at the foot were a picket and moat. Anthony Wayne with 1,400 men crossed the moat, tore down the abattis, stormed the fortifications and captured the garrison. He was hit on the head and thought to be killed and of the 21 Pennsylvanians in the forlorn hope 17 were shot. Though then universally regarded as the most brilliant feat of arms of the war, there has been little vaunting about it since.

Penn's Influence.

The final success of the war was due to the fact that France came to our assistance and the friendship of that country was largely the result of the impression made on the minds of the Frenchmen by Penn's "Holy Experiment." Even Voltaire at one time expressed a wish to emigrate to Pennsylvania and the treaty which was never signed and never broken had caught the fancy and met the approval of all Europe. I have an autograph letter written in 1831 by Albert Gallatin, formerly secretary of the treasury, in which he says:

"Pennsylvania, the first example, the first experiment, which demonstrated that a community may remain under the influence of deep religious feeling without any compulsory law whatever on the subject of religion and all denominations live in perfect harmony. This hailed by all the friends of liberty, appealed to by all as a decisive proof, had given the highest character to Pennsylvania, though only a colony, and was one of the principal, if not the main cause of the great popularity of America during her revolutionary contest."

Pennsylvania in 1812.

In the war of 1812, when our independence of British control was finally assured, Pennsylvania furnished the commander-in-chief, the then popular hero, Maj. Gen. Jacob Brown, and if the contemporary authority of John Binns can be depended upon, a greater number of troops than any other state. Her naval record was unsurpassed if equaled. The attitude of Massachusetts toward the war, owing to the fact that it injuriously affected her commercial interests, cannot be excused and can only be condoned and forgotten. She refused financial aid, and declined to respond to the call of the president for her quota of militia, and the convention at Hartford first broached the pernicious doctrine of secession so fruitful in the production of future ills to the republic. The president in his message described Massachusetts and Connecticut as being in insurrection, and Josiah Quincy, Abijah Bigelow, and 52 other members of congress published a pamphlet, soon reproduced in London, for the comfort of the enemy, in which they contended for the right of the English to take seamen from our vessels, and used this thinly-veiled threat of destruction to the union: "A form of government, in no small degree experimental, composed of powerful and independent sovereigns, associated in relations, some of which are critical, as well as novel, should not be precipitated into situations calculated to put to trial the strength of the moral bond by which they are united."

Pennsylvania Again Scores.

A president of the United States once felt it to be his duty to inform congress that a secret agent of the foe "was employed in certain states, more especially at the seat of government of Massachusetts, in fomenting disaffection to the constituted authorities of the nation and in intrigues with the disaffected for the purpose of bringing about resistance to the laws, and eventually, in concert with a British force, of destroying the union and forming the eastern part thereof into a political connection with Great Britain."

At half past 4 o'clock on the morning of April 12, 1861, the rebels opened fire upon Fort Sumter in Charleston harbor. Before the sun went down that day Pennsylvania had appropriated $500,000 with which to arm the state. This first step in the war upon the part of the north, quick as a flash, three days before the call by the president for troops, followed by New York on the 15th, and the other states later, is one of those momentous and overpowering events that determine the fate of nations, to be remembered with the crossing of the Rubicon and the dinner of the Beggars of the Sea. Three days after the call for troops five companies from Pennsylvania, the van of that mighty host which, during the succeeding four years, were to follow, arrived in Washington. The next day the Seventh Pennsylvania and the Sixth Massachusetts shed the first blood in the streets of Baltimore. Within four days after the defeat Bull Run 17,000 Pennsylvanians armed, equipped and disciplined, were in Washington to save the city from capture. No other state had an entire division in the army and all of them were below her in the percentage of those killed in battle. Simon Cameron was secretary of war at the beginning of the struggle and Edwin M. Stanton at its close. Pennsylvania had 48 general officers in the war and 14 commanders of armies and corps; Meade, McClellan, Hancock, Reynolds, Humphreys, Birney, Gibbon, Park, Naglee, Smith, Cadwalader, Crawford, Heintzelman and Franklin. Two of them commanded the Army of the Potomac, that army upon which the fortunes of the war depended. It was neither Grant nor Sherman nor Thomas who fought the battle that determined the issue of the contest, but George G. Meade upon the Pennsylvania field of Gettysburg. Will someone tell us what great captain or what significant event in this most fateful of American crisis is to be credited to Massachusetts?

In the Spanish War.

In the late war with Spain there came as a result that American principles and institutions are no longer to be confined to this continent, but are to become the heritage of other peoples in other lands. Is it in Boston or in Philadelphia that organizations were created whose object was to thwart the purposes of the government?

Robert Morris managed the finances of the revolution, Stephen Girard those of the war of 1812 and Jay Cooke those of the rebellion. The "Pennsylvania idea," wrought out by Henry C. Carey adopted by Henry Clay and William McKinley, has dominated American politics since the origin of the government.

Pennsylvania has no ills that are worthy of mention. Her 6,000,000 of people, twice those of Holland and four times those of Massachusetts, are happy, prosperous and contented, and they are less taxed and get more in return than their neighbors. There may be an occasional wanderer among them who thinks Berkshire hills are higher than the Allegheny mountains, that the deserted wharves of Salem are more attractive than the shipyards of Kensington, and that Benjamin F. Butler, who with the home spirit wrote a book about himself, was a more skillful soldier than Hancock or Humphreys, but the vagaries of the human mind are often unexplainable.

Pennsylvania Achievement.

Cramp is still building the navies of the world and Baldwin is still constructing its locomotives. Furness is editing Shakespeare, Henry C. Lea and McMaster are writing histories and Dr. S. Weir Mitchell is writing novels. Leidy, Cope and Brinton, Agnew, Gross and Pepper have just left us, and Hare, the most famous of contemporary American jurists, is still alive. There is a university or college in almost every county and the work of Lehigh, Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr and the University of Pennsylvania, the last of which has opened up a new field of learning in the far east, invites comparison with that of any similar institution in America or Europe.

The anonymous purveyor of articles, though both ignorant and malicious, was nevertheless correct in his statement that here respect is accorded to inherited good character, and it is a significant illustration of the conservatism of ruling forces that the present mayor of Philadelphia is a member of one of the oldest Quaker families in the state, which sent George Ashbridge to the assembly from Chester county from 1730 to 1770, the longest period of service in that body, and that the great-grandfather of Pennsylvania's most great-grandfather of Pennsylvania's most distinguished statesman was a major in Wayne's Chester county regiment in the revolutionary war.

State Affairs.

There has been some commotion in public affairs in Pennsylvania since 1895, but it is neither deep-seated nor important, and does not call for invidious comment. In the existing complications of mundane affairs the power of accumulated money is very great. It sways alike marts, magazines and newspapers and fills pulpits. It leads nations to look on complacently while the people of the republics of South Africa are being murdered for their possessions.

The United States senate has in recent years sometimes been flippantly called a millionaires' club. The fate which has befallen some other commonwealths was tendered to Pennsylvania. It was proposed and the proposition was supported by some well-meaning persons, that the highest representative office in that state where the declaration of independence was adopted, the constitution of the United States was framed and the battle of Gettysburg was won, should be handed over to an enterprising and successful merchant, not because of training in statecraft and public service, but as a reward for commercial prosperity, like a bale of cotton goods to be secured in the market for a consideration. The attempt was made in the wrong state, among the wrong people, and it failed.

Pennsylvania and Quay.

Little inquiry is needed to ascertain why men in Pennsylvania are attached to Mr. Quay and proud of his accomplishment. It is not for me to express an opinion concerning his political methods or principles, but about his personal characteristics it is permitted me to speak. No man, whatever may be his intelligence, can be regarded as having reached greatness who, when tested in a crisis pregnant with the vital interests of humanity, fails to comprehend the situation or, understanding it, fails to act in accordance with his convictions. When Daniel Webster, charged with responsibility and confronted with the dangers arising from the growth of the slave power, knew no other device than to compromise with the iniquity and entail war on the next generation, he may not have earned the designation of Ichabod given him by Whittier, but he certainly indicated that he did not belong to the front rank of statesmen. The tide of iniquity surged onward seeking a Lincoln and a Meade and left to him such fame as comes from the utterance of oratorical phrases. Mr. Quay is a plain, simple, modest and kindly man, with a taste for books and literature, with no propensity for the acquisition of riches and with a genius for the organization and control of men in masses, such as, like the gift of Shakespeare, comes but once in centuries.

Tribute to Quay.

Without prating about honesty he has this essential of the highest integrity that he meets every obligation and keeps his every word. He has a courage which never flinches, whether in war or politics. He fails in no duty, and he is never beaten. He has permanently influenced the destinies of the American people, since it was due to his individual capacity and effort that Mr. Harrison was elected to the presidency and the Republican party restored to control; that the force bill was prevented from becoming a law, and, in large measure, that the McKinley tariff bill was enacted. During the last 20 years no Republican president could have been elected without his counsel, and no national policy successful without his support. Helpful, sagacious and strong, a knightly and picturesque figure, whether riding in the van at Fredericksburg, thwarting the wiles of Tammany or routing the combination of corporations in Pennsylvania, his fame is assured as a statesman who deserves well of his country and in whose achievements even Massachusetts may properly take a pride.

ment they appear to be preparing for a long strike.

SHAMOKIN, PA., May 4.—Local members of the special miners' committee returned from New York today. They were discouraged over the refusal of the operators to grant an eight-hour work day, the weighing of coal at the mines and an increase in wages. Notice has been sent to members of the ninth district executive board to go to Scranton to attend the district convention of the three district boards to decide upon a call to strike or order a general convention of miners to resolve how to treat with the situation. The board from this district will go to Scranton Tuesday.

In case of a tie-up 52,000 men and boys will be rendered idle in the ninth district. Many miners here might said they are ready to cease work whenever ordered to do so.

SCRANTON, PA., May 4.—District President T. D. Nichols of the United Mine Workers returned Saturday night from the New York conferences with coal operators. Like all others who attended the conference he was not inclined to talk at any considerable length on what was done. On only two things would he permit himself to be quoted. One was that the heads of the coal companies accorded the miners' representatives a full and patient hearing, and the other that nothing was accomplished save that they were told that they could come again at any time and be heard without any stipulations being made as to the capacity in which they might come.

Important Point Gained.

As to whether or not the miners consider this latter as the gain of an important point, Mr. Nichols was silent. It is likely, however, that it is considered important, for it is only logical that if the president of a coal company is willing to hear from his employes through the officers of their union, the local superintendents cannot, with becoming grace, refuse to do the same thing. One of the coal men at the conference expressed surprise in hearing that one of his district superintendents had refused to grant an audience to Mr. Nichols when the latter approached him with a view of adjusting some grievance.

It would seem from the best information obtainable that no one can give even a guess as to what will be the result of the convention of district officers called by President Mitchell for this city Wednesday next. There are 11 district officers in the first district and as many more in each of the other two districts. Only 25 of these were in New York. The sentiment of these was not formally canvassed and there is no one with any definite idea of how the eight absentees stand.

Power to Order Strike.

When all come together President Mitchell will report the results of the conferences and submit to them the question of what they propose to do about it. Under the action of the Shamokin convention the district officers have full power to declare a strike or adopt whatever measures seem best suited to meet the emergency.

WILKESBARRE, PA., May 4.—The failure of the coal operators and representatives of the miners to come to an agreement at their conferences in New York was a great disappointment to the people of this section of the anthracite field, who had come to the conclusion that there would be an amicable settlement of the difficulties and a strike would be out of the question for another year at least. The prevailing sentiment now is that a strike can hardly be avoided. Since the operators have refused to make any concessions the miners must either back down in their demands or quit work.

Many Favor a Strike.

The men of the Wyoming region talk strongly in favor of strike tonight. The defiant attitude of the operators appears to have united all the underground workers into the belief that there is only one thing to do and that is to quit work and remain out until such time as the coal companies grant their demands.

The individual coal operators of this section have expected a strike. They claim the presidents of the large coal carrying companies had made up their minds some time ago not to recognize the miners' union or grant any demands that might be made upon them.

Opinions differ as to how long the miners can hold out should they go on strike. One of the officers of the miners' union in this city said tonight that they could hold out long enough to win. It is the general belief that if a strike is declared it will be a prolonged struggle.

NEW YORK, May 4.—There seemed to be a faint hope among the representatives of the anthracite miners who were in this city today that there was a possibility of averting a strike, yet they were all somewhat depressed. They think, it is said, that Senator Hanna may yet do something to avert the strike.

President Mitchell when seen at the Ashland house was asked if the miners would make any more attempts in the interests of peace.

Time for Action Arrive.

"We have spoken our last word," he said, "and the time for action has arrived. As I said in my statement on Saturday night the situation is very threatening. When the 28 members of our executive committee for the three anthracite districts meet in Scranton on Wednesday, it will be for them to decide on a strike. I did not hear from Senator Hanna today and I do not expect to hear from him. I do not know when he will call the meeting of the executive committee if he does call it."

Mr. Mitchell said that two of the presidents of the three anthracite districts who are still here, will start for Scranton tomorrow and he will leave here Tuesday for the same place. He would look after some matters of local interest only in some of the bituminous regions tomorrow, but they were not important. He declined to talk on the subject of the quantity of anthracite mined during the truce of 30 days.

"Is it a fact that coal was stored up?" he was asked.

"I don't care to say anything about that at this time," he said.

Mitchell Says Little.

"Are you in a position to know if the companies have a large quantity of anthracite in storage?"

"I know the whole situation," he said, "but cannot talk on it now."

E. B. Thomas of the Erie railroad, one of the committee of seven representing the coal companies, when a reporter sought his views today sent word that he had nothing to say.

President Truesdale of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western road was also seen.

"Are you preparing for a strike?" he was asked.

"We don't need to prepare," he said. "We are still mining coal."

"Do you think there will be a strike?"

"I won't talk on the question," he replied.

In reply to another question he said the operators would probably have attended if Senator Hanna had called another meeting of the conciliation committee.

"But," he added, "the conciliation committee apparently does not intend to have the meeting."

UNWILLING DARK HORSE APPEARS ON THE SCENE

Mrs. Decker of Colorado Being Boomed for President of Federation of Women's Clubs.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

LOS ANGELES, CAL., May 4.—Mrs. Decker of Colorado, without her consent, has become a formidable candidate for the presidency of the Federation of Women's clubs. It is said that nine states have declared for her and will push her candidacy without her consent. Mrs. Decker has refused to let her name be used in this connection as long as Mrs. Denison remains in the field.

The board of directors has decided not to take the color question from the table and if it comes before the convention it will be on an independent motion. This attitude has induced Georgia to be more aggressive, and this morning, after the southern states had caucused and decided to stand shoulder to shoulder in their determination not to countenance colored clubs, every delegate found in her mail box a big circular headed "Suggestions from Georgia to the Delegates." The circular contained the compromise amendments known as the New York compromise.

A New Jersey delegate has the startling information, discovered by Judge J. B. Dill, the corporation attorney of New York, that the present charter, obtained by the general federation under the laws of New Jersey 13 years ago, was secured under the act providing for charity and philanthropy, instead of clubs and societies, so that the general federation, by mistake, is acting under a charter which authorizes them only to look after indigent widows, establish mission Sunday schools and bury the dead.

Killed by Live Wires.

Louis Wampje, 11 years old, the son of Herman Wampje of Sheraden, was killed by electricity yesterday afternoon. Young Wampje and several other boys had gone to Swaggers hollow to play. They began to throw stones at the telegraph wires. Several wires were stretched on the ground and young Wampje, while passing among them, got his feet caught. The wires were "live" and the boy fell among them. His companions were shocked while trying to extricate him. When finally aid arrived Wampje was unconscious. He was removed to the office of Dr. H. E. Clarke, where he died three hours later.

Will Aid the Hospital.

An effort is being made with splendid premises of success to have an addition built to the South Side hospital, as the building on South Twentieth street has been found inadequate to accommodate the number of patients for whom admission has been sought. At least two men of wealth have agreed to make contributions. The month of April was a record-breaker for the hospital, 204 cases having been taken to the institution in that time for treatment.

The new proprietor of the Hotel Victoria, F. C. Smith, has already taken steps toward making some radical changes and improvements in the house, and it will hereafter be conducted as a strictly first-class hotel. The dining rooms are being repainted and recarpeted and Mr. Smith proposes to make the hotel one especially for businuess men. The policy of the hotel will be materially changed and it will cater only to high-class trade.

Openly Backs Fuller Bid for Western Maryland and Guarantees Promises.

WRITES TO MAYOR HAYS

Road, When Purchased, to Be Used as Terminal for Wabash, West Virginia Central and Wheeling & Lake Erie Systems.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Baltimore, May 4.—Mayor Hayes today received a letter from George J. Gould in which he places himself squarely behind the Fuller syndicate and pledges the faith of himself the Wabash, Wheeling & Lake Erie and West Virginia Central lines to perform the things the Fuller syndicate has promised the people of Baltimore and which constitute the grounds upon which they urge acceptance of their bid for the city's interest in the Western Maryland railroad.

This letter, it is believed, will remove all objections to the Fuller sale ordinance and it is expected that the second branch of the city council will pass the ordinance tomorrow night. It has already passed the first branch.

The letter follows:

New York, May 2.

The Hon. Thomas G. Hayes, Mayor of Baltimore:

Dear Sir—In view of newspaper reports attributing to me large accumulations of Reading stock, and in view also of doubts which seem to exist as to my own attitude and that of the Wabash Railroad Company as to the purchase and use of the Western Maryland railroad, I write to say:

First—That neither I nor my associated interests have any part in any purchases or accumulations of Reading stock, and the newspaper reports referred to are wholly erroneous.

Second—My own attitude and that of the Wabash Company to the proposed purchase of the Western Maryland railroad is, as stated by Mr. Ramsey, Col. Herrick and Mr. Pierce, namely, that the road is desired, if it can be bought at the price proposed, in order that it may be used as an outlet, with sea terminal at Baltimore, of the West Virginia Central, the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash system.

I communicate with you in this way not for the purpose of influencing the decision of Baltimore in the sale of its interest, but in order that its decision shall not have been reached under misapprehension of facts or purposes. I am,

Very respectfully,
GEORGE J. GOULD.

FOR YOUR WELFARE.

You Are Urged to Make Health Building Your First Work This Month.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Puts You in Condition to Withstand the Enervating Effects of a Hot Summer.

If you are ailing, sick, or diseased, it is our earnest desire to interest you in your own personal welfare. We try to do this by simply urging you to make health building your first work this month, as efforts to banish disease are much more difficult when, in addition to physical sufferings, you are obliged to contend with the enervating effects of a hot summer. Medical men know well that a sick person when treated with the proper medicine in May, has a much better chance for life and health than is possible in July or August.

The incalculable amount of good that Paine's Celery Compound is now doing in making sick people well, should compel the attention of every thinking man and woman now in sickness and suffering.

Faulty nutrition of the nervous system is the direct cause of nervous debility, headaches, dyspepsia and neuralgia—ailments that thousands are now suffering from. When people have blood that is pale, watery, and full of impurities, their nerves cannot assimilate food properly and derive nourishment from it.

Paine's Celery Compound used in May cleanses the blood, bestows greater nerve force, regulates the stomach and bowels, arouses a healthy appetite and brings about a normal action of the dormant liver. Paine's Celery Compound in every case gives a positive and permanent cure. It is the most thoroughly honest medicine that run down and sickly men and women can employ. Its life giving effect on nerves and blood is truly marvelous.

POLICE ASKING COUNCILS FOR INCREASED PAY

An Ordinance Will Be Presented at the Next Meeting.

TWENTY PER CENT RAISE

Petition Has Been Signed by Every Patrolman and Wagonman in City. All Grades Below Inspector Are Affected—Other Cities Pay More.

At the next meeting of the city councils an ordinance providing for an increase in the salaries of the police force will be presented. That announcement was made yesterday at a meeting of the patrolmen's committee that has been agitating the salary question. A councilman has agreed to present the ordinance and to fight for its adoption, should opposition be shown.

The committee met in No. 7 police station in South Thirteenth street. The full committee of 23 men was present and the meeting was presided over by Patrolman Charles A. Freeborn of No. 7 station. Patrolman John Kerr of No. 6 was secretary. The committee is composed of patrolmen reporting at the various stations, four being from No. 1 station, two from No. 2, two from No. 3, four from No. 4, three from No. 5, three from No. 6, three from No. 7 and two from No. 8. The first meeting of the committee was held last Sunday.

Yesterday's meeting was to receive reports from the different station houses. It was shown that every patrolman and wagonman had signed the petitions to councils, which have been passed around, praying for an increase in salaries for everybody on the force except inspectors, thus including captains, lieutenants, sergeants, patrolmen and wagonmen. The inspectors are not included, because when the districts were reorganized five inspectors were appointed to do the work that three had formerly done, and their salaries were raised from $110 to $150 a month.

The advance provided for in the ordinance is 20 per cent, and if the ordinance is adopted the salaries will be as follows: Captains $120 a month, instead of $100; lieutenants $3 60 a day, instead of $3; sergeants $3 30 a day, instead of $2 75, and patrolmen $3, instead of $2 50.

This request is far more modest than the demands made by the policemen more than a year ago. Then they wanted the increase of 20 per cent and in addition a vacation of 30 days with pay and two uniforms a year.

The committee has made an informal canvass of the city councils and feels much encouraged, having been assured that many councilmen are disposed to vote for the increase requested. A comparison of the pay received in Pittsburgh with that received by policemen in large and small towns is interesting. New York patrolmen get $1,400 a year and a clothing allowance; in Allegheny policemen get $65 a month; the same wages are paid in McKeesport; Wilkinsburg's protectors receive $2 75 a day.

The police have on several occasions sought an increase in pay, but invariably other city employes immediately presented their claims for better salaries, so that the city councils always shelved the movement.

HAVE WORK AT HOME.

No Detectives Will Leave Pittsburgh to Aid in Protecting London During Coronation.

No detectives are to be sent from Pittsburgh to the coronation of King Edward in London. Word comes from England that crooks from all over the world are flocking to the metropolis, and that detectives from the continental capital, from Melbourne and Sidney, Australia, and New York and Chicago are being engaged by the London police board to cope with the pickpockets and the swell mobsmen who expect to play high jinks with the big crowds that will flock into London during the coronation.

Superintendent Philip Demmel was asked last night if any Pittsburgh detectives were going. He laughed and said that no request had been sent and he doubted if any of the detectives cared to travel to London at their own expense.

Depopulation of a part of Allegheny is looked for, and, in fact, hoped for outside of Allegheny police circles. It is expected that in a few days the crooks who stumble over one another in certain streets and resorts in that city will leave for England, thus relieving the anxiety of the inhabitants of the surrounding country.

CAME NEAR LYNCHING.

Angry Mob Surrounded Negro Prisoner and Beat Him Over the Head.

CUMBERLAND, MD., May 4.—(Special.)—John Wesley Frye, a negro of Bedford county, Pa., narrowly escaped lynching here at an early hour this morning. Yesterday evening while Margaret Showacre, 9 years old, daughter of John Showacre of this city, was gathering flowers at the base of Willis mountain and within sight of her home, she was approached by Frye, and asked to follow him up into the mountain. The girl refused, when the negro said he would take her with him, but she escaped.

Early this morning the police captured Frye. He admitted trying to induce the girl to follow him. A mob assembled, and before the officers could get him to the police station, an attempt was made to lynch Frye. As it was the negro was badly beaten over the head. Frye has been placed in jail, which is being guarded.

DOG IN JAIL.

East End Canine that Bit Several Persons Will Be Examined By a Physician.

The dog which raised such an excitement on Collins avenue Saturday night by biting people and snapping and snarling as though afflicted with rabies, is still locked up in a cell at the East End police station, where he was confined Saturday night. All day yesterday the dog refused to eat or drink, although tempting food and clear, cold water were offered to him. He howled dismally all the time and made miserable every one about the place.

Officer Charles Willis, who was badly bitten on the left wrist by the dog, is in a serious condition. His wrist and hand are swollen and black. The dog has not been killed for the reason that he is being kept for examination by a physician.

Many persons visited the police station yesterday to get a look at the dog, which kept walking back and forth in his cell like a caged wolf and would bite savagely at anything thrust into his cell.

BRYAN'S NEW ROLE.

Wearies of Playing Moses but Is Willing to Take the Less Conspicuous Part of Aaron.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 4.—William J. Bryan and Gov. William Jennings of Florida were the guests of the Birmingham Bimetallic club at a banquet last night. Many prominent Alabamians were present.

During his speech Mr. Bryan intimated that he would not again be a candidate for the presidential nomination. In referring to the subject he likened himself to Aaron, who, he said, assisted Moses in leading the children out of the wilderness by his public utterances. He said he was perfectly willing to let some other person take the part of Moses.

UNITED STATES MINISTER TO COLOMBIA SQUARES HIMSELF.

Arrives Home on Vacation and Explains the Situation to the Satisfaction of President Roosevelt—Greedy Landlord Disappointed in Effort to Extort Money

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WHEELING, W. VA., May 4.—The Hon. Charles Burdette Hart, United States minister to Colombia, who was reputed to be persona non grata to that government, is in Wheeling on a two months' leave of absence.

Upon his arrival in the United States Mr. Hart waited upon President Roosevelt and explained the situation in the South American republic to the satisfaction of the president.

The story emanating from Washington was that Mr. Hart had been interfering on behalf of the rebels, or members of the Liberal party, had refused to pay his rent on the legation headquarters and that his son had been interested in business, using the minister's position to obtain customs concessions.

Mr. Hart's relations with the Colombian government have been entirely pleasant. With the exception of the rent episode there was no foundation whatever for the charges. A greedy landlord had attempted to enforce payment of extortionate charges, which Mr. Hart, in justice to himself and his government, refused to pay. The amount involved was but $900 and the incident was readily closed when Mr. Hart's inflexible purpose not to be fleeced became apparent.

Mr. Hart was one of the earliest of President McKinley's appointees, a strong friendship having existed between the two for over 25 years. He was a newspaper correspondent at Washington when Mr. McKinley came to congress, and through Judge W. D. Kelley, known as "Pig Iron" Kelley, he soon became acquainted with Mr. McKinley.

Minister Hart came to West Virginia in 1882 and purchased an interest in the Wheeling Intelligencer, of which he was editor until he received his post in Colombia. He is one of the prominent Republicans of the state, and during the winter of 1899, when Senator Scott was selected as the Republican candidate for the United States senate, Hart was prominently mentioned for the office.

WORD FROM THE CHICAGO

Capt. Wynne Cables to His Father He Defended a Brother Officer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne tonight received the first word that has come to this country direct from any of the officers of the United States cruiser Chicago, arrested in Venice. It was from his son, Frank, who is captain of the marines on the Chicago and was in response to cable dispatches sent when the first news of the affair reached this country and evidently was dispatched at the first opportunity Capt. Wynne had of communicating with home.

The cable message said the sender had defended a brother officer from an attack by a mob and that there was no occasion for worry.

SUBLIME PORTE UNFIT TO GOVERN

PASTOR WOULD JOIN A CRUSADE TO BLOW UP THE SULTAN.

The Rev. S. Edward Young Told of Abdul Hamid in the Second Presbyterian Church Last Night—Spies on Hand to Watch the Celtic.

Fifty-five persons were received into membership of the Second Presbyterian church yesterday, 46 on profession of faith and nine by letters from other churches. In the evening the pastor, the Rev. S. Edward Young, delivered an address on "What About Sultan Abdul Hamid, His Private Life and His Empire?" in which he said that the sultan has forfeited his right to govern.

Mr. Young took his text from Job, iv:8, "They that plow iniquity and sow wickedness reap the same." He said in part:

"By nature the fairest empire beneath the sky tonight and by man made the unhappiest is Turkey. Yet 200 leading public men, so said the best American authority in Turkey, had been assassinated or exiled during the two weeks preceding our visit to the Bosporus. Not an official there wakes in the morning with any considerable certainty that he will wear his head till sundown. The land is one colossal hypocrisy and suspicion. Few laugh. A peaceful face is seldom seen.

The Riches of the Sultan.

"Who is the wealthiest human being alive? Sultan Abdul Hamid. Nothing has England, nothing has Germany or Russia, nothing has any nation to compare with his private storehouse of riches called the treasury. Whilst the United States clamored for a settlement of the bill the sultan owed us and deferred paying year after year he might any moment have taken enough jewels to square the account from a single throne in the treasury taken by Selim I. from the pashas of Persia, and still have left upon that divan of beaten gold thousands upon thousands of pearls, rubies and emeralds. When France was marshaling her fleet in the Mediterranean to force a settlement from Turkey, one uncut emerald hung above another throne in the treasury would have paid the indebtedness and left an emerald beside precious enough to enrich a king.

Spies Watched the Celtic.

"The sultan gave orders that the Celtic should not be allowed to disembark any passengers in case it reached the Golden Horn before he had finished worship or 'Selamlik' that Friday. Twenty spies were sent by him to the ship and nobody knows how many watched on the pier. We were counted as we came down the gang-stairs, counted as we got in the launch, counted as we stepped ashore that night, lest an assassin be found among us. Poor man! He forbids electricity and the telephone in Constantinople—might they not facilitate his assassination? Not a morsel of food will he take until an attendant has partaken and it has stood the test. Not a step outside the door of the yildiz kiosk will he go except to Seraglio point on the 15th of Ramazan to kiss the cloak and beard of Mohammed, and once a year to the Baiman festivities—and then so guarded a bomb could hardly hit him. None hate him as do his own harem—wretched, ignorant women playing with dolls like children—and his brothers and children. One crusade I want to join—a crusade that will take a few warships to the Bosporus and blow the inhuman government of the Turk into oblivion."

Duggleby Leaves the American.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—Pitcher Duggleby announced tonight that he has left the Philadelphia American league club and would join the local National league club. He said he would leave in the morning with Manager Shettsline to play with the Phillies at St. Louis.

NEW AIRSHIP MAKES A SUCCESSFUL TRIP IN A PARK AT PARIS

Santos-Dumont Has a Rival in Augusto Severo, Another Brazilian.

THE BALLOON OBEYED PROPELLER'S IMPULSE

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PARIS, May 4.—In spite of the threatening weather Senor Augusto Severo, the Brazilian aeronaut, made a successful first trial with his airship at the Vaugirard Aerostatic park today. Senor Severo's airship is called La Paix.

The balloon, held by a rope, ascended 40 meters. The motors were then started. The balloon obeyed the impulse of propellers, steering easily and maintaining perfect equilibrium. After maneuvering for a shot time, Senor Severo safely returned the airship to its shed. The few persons who were present at the park enthusiastically applauded Senor Severo and the two assistants who accompanied him in the ascent.

La Paix is not unlike Santos-Dumont's airships in appearance, but it differs from them in many details. The gas capacity of La Paix is nearly four times greater than that of Santos-Dumont's airships. It has three main propellers and two smaller ones, used for steering and in ascending and descending. The two petroleum motors of La Paix are of 24 and 16 horsepower respectively.

Senor Severo said he would not make another trial until there was perfectly fair weather and that he would then attempt to extend his flight.

PEKING, May 4.—United States Minister Conger has protested to Prince Ching, the president of the foreign office, regarding the expulsion of Chinese Christians from the new European school established by Yuan Shi Kai, the governor of Chi Li province, for refusing to worship according to the Confucian tablets.

Mr. Conger calls the attention of Prince Ching to the fact that the treaty promises that no discrimination shall be made against Christians and say that such a policy would lead foreigners to question the good faith of China in carrying out this obligation.

EARL ROBERTS TO RETIRE.

Probably Will Be Succeeded in Army by the Duke of Connaught.

LONDON, May 4.—(Copyright Cable.)—In military circles the question of Earl Roberts' retirement from the post of commander-in-chief immediately after the coronation, is freely discussed.

It is looked upon as a certainty that the Duke of Connaught will succeed him and will not return to Ireland. The fact that Earl Roberts has recently purchased a big estate in the country is considered proof of this statement.

Four Hungarians, two of whom were brothers of Hutko, had a fight and were arrested by the Windber police. The other three made no resistance, but Hutko drew his revolver and fired two shots at Officer Chambers, who fired once in return. Chamber's bullet took effect in the foreigner's abdomen. He was watched by two men at Bakers landing, and when about waist deep in the water they saw him raise a pistol to his head, heard a report and saw him plunge over into the water.

They rowed to where the young man had dropped, caught his body and brought it to this place. There is nothing on the clothing to aid in identification.

Who Is Fighting for Another Term as Register and Recorder in Beaver County.

It is not being conducted along Quay or anti-Quay lines, but to determine whether the one term policy is to continue or be discarded.

There are five candidates in the field, but to some the fight seems to be narrowing down between Wilbur R. Harris of New Brighton and Herman F. Dillon of Beaver Falls. The other aspirants are George W. Altsman, J. L. B. Dawson and J. S. Mitchell, all of Beaver Falls.

Dillon had one term in the office and then O. C. Harris, the present register and recorder, was elected. He defeated Dillon for renomination on the issue that if he was given one term he would not ask for another.

Wilbur R. Harris is a son of the present recorder. The young man fought with the Tenth regiment in the Philippines. After his return he entered his father's office as deputy. Now he is a candidate for the office.

When young Harris announced his candidacy Dillon considered that as one of the Harris family was a candidate, the one term agreement was broken and he would ask for another three years in the office. This has tended to narrow the fight to Harris and Dillon and it is growing warmer each day.

CELEBRATION AT SCOTTDALE.

Polish Speakers Eulogize the United States Government.

SCOTTDALE, PA., May 4.—(Special.)—The annual celebration of the Polish independence day took place here today. The uniformed Polish military guards, with several civic orders of the same nationality, headed by the Scottdale Grand Army band, paraded the principal streets of this place and Everson. Every person in the parade carried a small American flag, while each organization taking part in the parade was headed by a color bearer carrying the stars and stripes.

While some of the speakers told of the glories and greatness of the Poland that was, most of the speeches were eulogistic of the government of the United States in affording a refuge for a people who have been practically banished from their homes.

ELOPEMENT DIVULGED BY GROOM'S ILLNESS

New Kensington Couple Kept Secret of Marriage One Week.

YOUNG WIFE WANTED TO NURSE HUSBAND

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW KENSINGTON, PA., May 4.—An elopement which is causing much interest in local society circles took place a week ago, but the fact that the young folks were married was made known only today. A large number of the younger society set of the valley took advantage of the excursion to Wheeling for an outing. Among the number were Miss Ida Laing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Laing of Seventeenth street, and Robert Laughlin, a prominent young society man of the borough.

Opposition to their marriage was interposed by the parents of the bride owing to her youth. Instead of going to Wheeling with the remainder of the party, the young couple went to Youngstown and were married. On the Friday evening before the party was to leave for Wheeling, and consequently the day before the proposed wedding was to take place, young Laughlin was taken ill and it was feared he was taking typhoid fever. Nothing was to stop them in their arrangements, however, and he went, despite his sickness.

On his coming home he was forced to return to his sick bed and is now in a precarious condition. It is probable that their marriage would not have been known yet had it not been for the young husband's illness. His wife could not stand the strain any longer and told her parents that she was Laughlin's wife and was going to nurse him.

Both are members of prominent families. As soon as the groom recovers they will go to housekeeping in the borough. Both have been forgiven and the usual blessing added.

Sale of Sample Pia
Hamilton's Prices $135 and Up

Here's an opportunity to get a sample piano at a price so much below the regular price as to surprise even the manufacturer.

But when we tell you how we came into possession of these instruments you will readily understand how we can afford to reduce the prices.

Manufacturers of the instruments enumerated in this advertisement sent us samples in the hope that we would become their permanent representatives in this territory. We have had their instruments on our floors for a time, and must say they have proved entirely worthy. But we find it is an utter impossibility to handle every make that is submitted to us. Therefore we are obliged to sell all these instruments in order to make room for our regular stock.

The fact that none of the instruments in the lot have ever been outside our store since we received them from the factories will appeal especially to persons who know what sample pianos are.

We submit a few names with prices, just to show how unusual this opportunity is. And we particularly request customers to call as early as possible.

Necessarily the list is not a long one, and, of course, the instruments will be sold in a comparatively short time.

New England Pianos, regular prices $325 to $400, reduced for this special sample sale, $190 to $240.

Winthrop Pianos, regular prices $275 to $300, reduced for this special sample sale, $168 to $190.

Ricca & Son Pianos, regular prices $300 to $325, reduced for this special sample sale, $175 to $200.

Wegman Pianos, regular prices $285 to $350, reduced for this special sample sale, $205 to $300.

Biddle Pianos, regular prices $250 to $275, reduced for this special sample sale, $135 to $170.

These pianos, being samples, include some cases in special finishes which are particularly attractive, and we are sure customers will say they are among the most remarkable values it has ever been our pleasure to offer. However, we once more remind everybody that the lot is not large and that the sale will end soon.

Come while the opportunity is ripe.

Whether you have recently contemplated the purchase of a new piano or not, we cordially invite you to come in and look at these sample pianos.

And should you decide to buy, terms will be made to suit your convenience.

Monthly payments can be arranged if desired.

DALZELL MAY NOT BE ON CITIZEN TICKET

Machine Will Endeavor to Pass Resolution to Prevent Indorsement.

WILL PLEDGE NOMINEES

Candidacy of Judge Pennypacker Well Received in Pittsburgh—Opposition to M. G. Leslie as Chairman of City Committee.

The machine will attempt to prevent any of the candidates accepting Citizen party indorsement. This is to be done to prevent the placing of Congressman John Dalzell on the anti-ring ticket.

Every possible effort will also be made to prevent the placing of the Republican state candidates on the Citizens ticket. If the local organization cannot accomplish this by a resolution in the state convention there will be an endeavor to do this in the courts.

There is not the slightest likelihood of any of the machine candidates for county offices receiving Citizen indorsements. Neither is there much probability of any of the legislative nominees being taken up, although it is said that some of the Allegheny candidates are hopeful of securing a place on both tickets. It might be that the Citizens would indorse one or both of the candidates for judge. The machine does not want this. The leaders are of the opinion that if the organization candidates are worth indorsing they would bring strength to the Citizens.

Candidates Will Be Pledged.

When the various nominating conventions are held resolutions will be adopted in each pledging the nominee not to accept a nomination or indorsement from another party.

The machine will also try to stir up trouble in the Democratic ranks and, if possible, prevent fusion. The seed has been sown for some time. The plan is to get a large number of Democrats to demand places on the ticket, and if they cannot get pretty nearly an even divide, refuse to fuse.

There was considerable discussion yesterday of the candidacy of Judge S. W. Pennypacker for governor. There is little objection heard to him, but none of the men who are in a position to say what the local delegates will do are saying whether he will receive their support. Politicians generally do not look upon him as the candidate of Senator M. S. Quay. It is the general opinion that friends of the judge think that he would be a good man to nominate, and his name is being discussed to learn how Republicans would regard his candidacy.

Objecting to Leslie.

Recorder J. O. Brown has decided to make M. G. Leslie his successor as chairman of the Republican city committee. The selection does not meet with general approval in the machine and there is a quiet movement to secure another man. The election will occur in June. About the same time a county chairman will be chosen. A. C. Robertson may be re-elected.

The machine realizes that there is going to be a hard fight this fall. For months the leaders were hopeful of making some kind of a deal that would secure at least partial harmony and insure success. All hope of a fixing up has been abandoned. They have made up their minds that a hard battle is to be fought. The organization men are consoling themselves with the belief that the same feeling which was shown in this city last spring will not be prevalent in the county this fall. They are already figuring that the vote in Pittsburgh this fall will be at least 5,000 below that polled in the February election.

Booming Doty for Governor.

Westmoreland, Armstrong and Beaver Democratic friends of Judge J. W. Doty of Greensburg met at New Kensington Saturday night and started a boom for governor for the judge. They hold that he is the best man for the Democrats to nominate. The fact that he has twice been elected in a Republican county is pointed out as a strong card in his favor. The judge is strong with the people of his county.

It was the unanimous opinion of the New Kensington conference that Doty would be the choice of all the western counties. A committee will visit the judge and urge him to become a candidate. If he will consent a systematic campaign for delegates will begin. If Judge Doty is a candidate the 10 votes from his county will be at his disposal.

The school directors from the country districts will meet in Pittsburgh tomorrow to elect a superintendent of schools. Samuel Hamilton of Braddock will be a candidate and it is generally conceded that he will win. His opponents are J. G. A. Irvine of Etna and S. S. Baker of Chartiers township.

WATER WAS TOO COLD.

Fireman on a River Towboat Is the Season's First Victim.

Solomon W. Smith is the season's first victim of ice water drinking. He was a fireman on the towboat T. J. Wood, having taken the place of a fireman who had been taken sick three days before. Smith drank freely of ice ice water on Saturday while the boat was coming down the river and was seized with cramps. At Belle-Vernon a doctor was called on the boat to attend him. The fireman died at 12:25 a. m., just below lock No. 4.

Smith lived at No. 1230 Alley H, Wheeling, W. Va. His wife was notified and she asked that the body be sent on to Wheeling. As Smith died in Washington county the coroner of that county will handle the case. The body was brought on the boat to Pittsburgh because the facilities for caring for it at the point where the death occurred were inadequate.

A WANDERER WAS LAID AWAY WITH MOURNFUL CEREMONY.

Covered with the dark draperies of mourning, "Billy" was laid away Saturday afternoon. His mourners were the children of a whole neighborhood, and his funeral was attended with military honors.

Although gentlemanly in his habits, "Billy" was a vagabond at heart and did not bear a very high character in the neighborhood. With the inborn instinct of a tramp he resented every effort to curb his liberty, and no home was sumptuous enough to tempt him to more than one night's rest within its walls. Every effort was made to induce him to choose a permanent home, and the little ones for squares along North Highland avenue vied in furnishing dainties and tid-bits.

Like the majority of his wandering kind, "Billy" died with his boots on. He was found Saturday morning alongside the Highland avenue car tracks, near Hays street, with both forelegs cut off and life flickering feebly in his veins. Like a true wanderer, he died without a complaint, merely stretching out his sharp little claws for the last time, and purring a farewell to the little ones who had gathered around to bid a Maltese kitten a last good-bye.

Preceded by a drummer whose instrument beat the march in single, muffled strokes, borne by four of his best friends in a cigar-box casket lined with soft bright paper, and followed by a train of solemn youngsters, he was carried to a spot under a blossoming cherry tree in the lawn of William Patterson and placed in his last resting place. When the infantile sexton had thrown the last clod on the coffin the grave was covered with wild flowers and the youthful assemblage left him to Mother Earth.

THOUSANDS WERE SEEKING AFTER GREEN FIELDS

Pittsburghers Thronged to the Traction Parks Yesterday.

UNUSUALLY BUSY OPENING

Railways Company Was Forced to Make Many Shifts in Order to Provide Cars for the Accommodation of Nearly 50,000 People.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company opened their four parks, Kennywood, Calhoun, Oakwood and Southern, yesterday for the season of 1902 with free band concerts and vocalists, and as they were favored with fair skies and delightful summer weather, the attendance was remarkably large. It is estimated that between 40,000 and 50,000 people visited these parks yesterday. The recent rains and the warm weather for the past few days had the effect of giving the foliage a fair start and the grass was in excellent condition, which, in connection with the attention given by the several park managers to their buildings, walks and improvements generally, made each one appear very attractive.

The railway arrangements were excellent and while the cars for the most part were crowded at times, yet the immense number of passengers was handled in a splendid manner. Supt. J. S. Shedd of the Consolidated system was personally in charge of the movement of the cars and was assisted by a number of inspectors who were stationed at various points on the lines to see that cars retained their proper distance of at least 300 feet and to give directions as to the proper running according to schedule.

Cars in Demand.

In order to provide cars to carry the people some odd shifts were made. Green cars were run on the yellow line and yellow cars were sent to places where they had never been before. Erin street cars of the Consolidated company were put on the Suburban division to help out on the heavy hauling to Southern park. All the Allegheny cars and Interurban routes had to contribute cars to carry people to Calhoun and Oakwood. All the open or summer cars that have been equipped were out. Next Sunday there will be few box cars, except as extras. The work of changing motors from closed to open cars will be pushed this week.

On the line to Kennywood 100 cars were in use from the city, which is 41 more than usual. In addition to these, a large number of trip cars were run to and from Homestead. Fully 18,000 persons availed themselves of these advantages for this park alone. On the Calhoun park line 20 cars were in service, 20 extra ones being added to the usual number. The new open cars were put in service yesterday for practically the first time this season, and were greatly appreciated.

Early Arrivals at Kennywood.

The crowd at Kennywood commenced to arrive early in the afternoon and by 3 o'clock when the Homestead library band opened with the first number on the program the music pavilion was completely filled, while the grounds were also crowded. The concert was greatly enjoyed. Conductor E. R. Dolin, having arranged a popular program. The merry-go-round, the roller coaster and all the other amusement features, except the old mill, were not in operation. The old mill, however, and the refreshment stands were well patronized.

At Calhoun park the attendance was not quite so large as at Kennywood, but it was a record-breaker for this opening of the season, 12,000 persons being there. The cars were crowded with passengers, arriving at the park from both directions all the time from early morning until late at night. The Second Brigade band, Lieut. Peter Danhardt, leader, assisted by L. C. McLaughlin, baritone soloist, entertained the people in a most satisfactory manner.

The attendance at Oakwood was estimated at 10,000. The crowds noticed many improvements being made at this park, among them being an open-air music pavilion now in course of erection.

Attractions at Oakwood.

The attractions yesterday were Rocereto's concert band and the Harris quartet. Mr. Rocereto's afternoon program opened with Greizinger's "The Mill on the Cliff." His new march, "American Invasion," was wildly applauded. The vocal quartet sang "The Lost Chord," and a number of other standard and popular compositions.

A big crowd of people patronized the Suburban branch of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to get to Southern Avenue park. The Pittsburgh Philharmonic orchestra and the Lone Star quartet were the attractions there, and each one received a goodly burst of applause from the crowds of people who thronged the music stand.

Southern park, as it is generally called, is situated back on the hill tops in Baldwin township, where, while the sun's heat is just as great, a cool breeze sweeps along the hills, cooling the air, and everything it touches. Thousands of delicate blue violets were in bloom near the park entrance, and many young women left the park with great bunches as large as one hand could carry.

The traction company had taken extra precautions to get the crowd there as comfortably as possible, and 18 cars were running from the city past the park entrance yesterday afternoon. Even then the cars were crowded.

ADDITIONS TO THE ZOO.

Several Birds and Animals Secured by Supt. Trefow in New York City.

The crowds were not as large yesterday at Schenley an Highland parks as on the previous Sunday. The opening of the parks of the Pittsburgh Railways Company drew the people from the two city parks. In spite of this, however, a good sized crowd spent the day at Schenley and Highland.

During the week Superintendent Falconer received 12 more cases of cactus, making over 50 cases since his return from Mexico a few weeks ago. They are all of the flowering varieties and came from Southern California. Work on the new cactus house is proceeding rapidly, much of the foundation having been finished. The unsightly fountain in front of the conservatory is being torn down and other improvements are being made around the building. The ground was harrowed yesterday and will soon be ready for sodding.

There have been several new additions to the zoo since last Sunday. While in New York Superintendent Earnest Trefow succeeded in trading two Simonnite old lions for a number of birds and animals. He secured a zebu, known as the sacred cow of India, also two Rhesus monkeys, one large black swan, three sulphur-crested cockatoos and a pink-crested cockatoo. The latter is very tame and a good talker. Besides those he secured two macaws and mynah bird and two East Indian blue jays. There was another addition to the zoo yesterday when it was discovered that three groundhogs and a young porcupine had been born.

The Carnegie Music hall was comfortably filled yesterday. The program embraced six numbers, all of which were well received.

CITIES TO GET AN INCREASE IN SCHOOL FUNDS

Extra State Money to Be Absorbed in Business Centers.

PITTSBURGH GAIN, $11,000

Allegheny Also to Receive $6,000 More Than Last Year—$400,000 of the Annual Appropriation to Be Expended on Normal Institutions.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Harrisburg, Pa., May 4.—Restoration by the last legislature of the school appropriation to $11,000,000, the first half of which becomes payable on June 1, will make no uniform increase in the districts owing to the new returns used in making the distribution.

Some districts will receive about the same amount as was paid them the past two years on the basis of $5,000,000 annually, arbitrarily fixed by Gov. Stone, some less and others more, the increase being largely absorbed in the cities, boroughs and manufacturing districts where the population is rapidly increasing.

The district which will receive the largest increase is the city of Scranton, whose share of the fund will be $79,000 in excess of its allotment last year. Philadelphia gets an increase of $30,000; Pittsburgh, $11,000, and Allegheny, $6,000. The appropriation will be distributed on the basis of $1 44 for each child between 6 and 16 years, 96⅔ cents for each taxable person and $58 50 for each teacher returned by the various districts.

Normal Schools Get $400,000.

From the gross amount of the appropriation for the next two years $400,000 will be deducted for the support of the state normal schools and $50,000 for township high schools, leaving for the common schools $5,275,000 annually. In addition to the amount each district will receive from the regular appropriation they will be paid their proportionate share of the special appropriation of $1,000,000 made by the last legislature to cover the deficiency in the fund for the previous two years caused by Stone's veto.

This special appropriation is payable in four annual installments, so that each district is entitled also to one-twentieth of the amount received of the regular appropriation in 1901.

The department of public instruction has completed its calculation of the amount to which each district is entitled for the next fiscal year, although payment will not begin until after the regular summer vacation.

DIED IN THE STREET.

Mrs. Mary McQuilkin and Mary Paulson Expired Suddenly Yesterday.

Pedestrians on Carson street were startled yesterday morning by the sudden death in the open street of a woman who was standing at South Nineteenth and Carson streets. She was Mrs. Mary McQuilkin, 54 years old, who lived at No. 1927 Merriman street.

Mrs. McQuilkin had left the house and walked the short distance to Carson and South Nineteenth streets to board a car for Pittsburgh. She was standing at the curb and as a car approached she stepped off the sidewalk to meet it. Suddenly she grasped at her throat and with a smothered cry fell to the ground. Henry R. Dryden of No. 2000 Sarah street saw her fall and rushed to her aid. She was apparently in convulsions and died before Dryden and several other men could carry her into Dr. G. P. Rossmann's office, three doors from the corner.

To the coroner's deputy, who investigated the case, Dr. Rossmann said he thought on superficial examination that death was caused by fatty degeneration of the heart.

Mary Paulson, 70 years old, died suddenly yesterday at the E. B. Houghton house on Neville island, supposedly from heart disease. Houghton told a deputy coroner that the woman had no home and was visiting at his house. He had the body sent to the morgue.

NEW TRUST COMPANY.

Charter for Such an Institution at Oakmont Will Be Asked For.

Oakmont is to have a trust company. There is no such institution in the borough now nor in the sister borough of Verona. Interests of the First National bank of Verona and citizens of Oakmont are organizing the Oakmont Trust Company, which is to be incorporated at Harrisburg May 28, to start business with a capital of $125,000.

Prominent among the stockholders will be John M. Witherspoon, Alexander Thomas, Kaufman Stoner and Samuel M. Meals, directors in the First National bank of Verona, and Henry Berg and Hyatt M. Cribbs of Oakmont. Messrs. Thomas and Meals form the Pittsburgh law firm of Thomas & Meals.

Arrangements have not yet been made for the location of the trust company, which, however, will be in the borough of Oakmont, and will be entirely separate from the Verona bank. It is possible that a new building will be erected for the Oakmont Trust Company.

SKUNK HOLLOW MERCHANT SLAIN BY COUNTRYMAN

Quarrel Between Two Italians Culminates in Murder of One Near His Home.

MOB THREATENS SLAYER

Corpse and Murderer Ride in Patrol Wagon Together—Prisoner Caresses the Body and Throws Kisses to Women as He Passes.

Throwing himself on the body of his victim, Guiseppi Moriello last night kissed, again and again, the face of the man whom he had killed a short half-hour before.

P. Antonia Valle was a well-known Italian, and proprietor of a store in Skunk Hollow, Bloomfield. He was shot and instantly killed shortly after 8 o'clock last night by Guiseppi Moriello in front of the latter's home in Laurel avenue, near Taylor street, Moriello shot twice, according to his own confession, and for a time it was supposed that the bullets took effect side by side. Only one bullet took effect, however. The policeman who captured the murderer had a hard time preventing a mob from wreaking summary vengeance for the crime.

Moriello was at liberty for about 30 minutes, but was finally captured by Policeman Robert Bowles, whose beat passes near where the crime was committed. He was trying to escape and had already succeeded in getting rid of the gun with which he killed Valle. George Ellsworth, a former policeman, who was with Officer Bowles at the time, was instrumental in the capture, as he, being fleet of foot, turned Moriello about and drove him back into Officer Bowles' arms.

Vengeance Was Threatened.

While waiting for the arrival of the police patrol wagon in the hollow, with Moriello and his victim, both to be taken to No. 5 police station, the population of the hollow gathered about the murderer and threatened him at a lively rate in their native tongue. Capt. C. F. Ford, who came with the wagon, feared for a time that the prisoner would be taken away from the officers. It was with difficulty that he finally got the wagon with its load of living and dead away in safety.

At the police station Moriello said he could talk no English, and an interpreter was procured. He said that he was a baker, about 35 years of age, and boarded in a house in front of which he had shot Valle. He explained that two months ago he worked for Valle, who is the proprietor of a small store. At that time he lived with Valle. This lasted until about one month ago, when the pair had a fight and, according to Moriello, Valle hit him in the eye. Then they separated.

For the past month they have been estranged, and according to the story Moriello told, he was anxious to make up again. Accordingly when he saw Valle coming down the street last night he stepped from his house to meet him. Both men were carrying revolvers.

Kissed Victim's Face.

Moriello says that Valle made a reach for his hip pocket, and fearing he was going to be shot, he drew his gun and shot at Valle twice. Valle dropped, and was dead almost immediately, with a bullet hole in his forehead, just beside the left temple. Just what Moriello did in the interval between the shooting and his capture, cannot be determined. He says he went home and intended coming to the police station to give himself up. Policeman Bowles says he was trying to escape when Ellsworth headed him off and drove him back down the hill, where Bowles was waiting to arrest him.

Valle's gun was in his hip pocket, loaded full, each shell intact, so that any self-defense plea will be difficult for Moriello. Valle's gun was a .32-caliber. The size of Moriello's is not known, as it had not been found last night.

Moriello was very much affected when being taken back to the police station. Lying in the patrol wagon was the still warm body of the man he had just killed. He threw himself upon it, and kissed it again and again. When the police pulled him away he commenced throwing kisses toward it and then toward a woman, who was standing on the porch of one of the houses near which he lives.

Some person handed a handkerchief to Capt. Ford during the excitement saying: "You had better take care of this." Ford opened it when he got to the police station, and found a prayerbook, three pocketbooks, with an aggregate of about $110 in them, some lead pencils and other stuff. Where this came from no person knows. There were three pocketbooks, one with $44, one with $32 and one with about $11 or $12 in it. The dead man is 30 years of age and is survived by his wife and one child.

MOTHER AND CHILD DROWNED FROM SKIFF

Small Boat Containing Five Persons Overturned in the Youghiogheny River.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WEST NEWTON, PA., May 4.—A skiff containing four grown people and a child was overturned in the Youghiogheny river here early this morning, and Mrs. Fred Landsparger and her son, aged four years, were drowned.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Landsparger went to Collinsburg, a mining village on the west side of the river, one mile below this place, to attend a ball given by the Liederkrantz society of that place. Their home is in the north end of the town, directly opposite Collinsburg, and they crossed the river by means of a skiff. They boarded the boat at 1 o'clock to return. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Landsparger and son, Miss Maggie Herrington and Fred Bendig were in the skiff.

When about 40 feet from shore the boat capsized and the party was plunged into nine feet of water. Landsparger, Miss Herrington and Bendig reached the shore, and by clinging to the overturned boat, landed a short distance down stream.

Landsparger at first supposed that the woman he had rescued was his wife. When he heard the wife and child cry for help he returned to the water only to see them sink from view. Searching parties have thus far failed to recover the bodies.

OBJECT TO PAYING TOLL.

West Virginia Farmers Conflict With County Authorities.

CUMBERLAND, MD., May 4.—(Special.)—There is war on between the farmers using the Charleston (W. Va.) & Berryville turnpike and the county authorities. The former claim that the latter have no authority to charge toll and will test the right in court.

Yesterday a number of farmers rode up to the toll gate and demanded to be allowed to pass without paying toll. Their demand was refused. They then hitched their horses at the gate and walked to Charleston. They will apply for an injunction restraining the county from imposing a toll, claiming that they pay taxes to keep up the road.

CONSOLIDATION MAY FALL THROUGH

BELIEF THAT BIG STRAWBOARD DEAL MAY NOT BE CLOSED.

Failure to Make a Cash Payment of $2,000,000 for Interests of Hartje Brothers May 1 May Mean That the Plan Will Not Be Consummated.

The big strawboard consolidation to have been launched on May 1 with $32,000,000 capital is now an uncertain proposition. The interests of Hartje Bros. of Pittsburgh, including their extensive paper mills in Steubenville, O., and the business in Pittsburgh, were to have been absorbed by the strawboard consolidation for over $2,000,000 in cash. The time limit for the payment had been fixed at May 1, and the failure to close at that time leads to the belief that the entire deal may fall through.

Negotiations have been on for several months, Dean & Shibley of New York acting as promoters and financiers. It had been expected that the consolidation would be completed in March, but now the word has gone out that it will require more time, with no definite period named.

Hartje Bros., partly in anticipation of their paper-making and jobbing business being taken over on May 1, leased their present building in Wood street to Frick & Lindsey. At the same time work is well along on another building adjoining, which, if the strawboard consolidation is completed, will be leased to it, and otherwise it will be used by Hartje Bros. instead of the other building. The Steubenville works, which employ about 600 men, are now being enlarged.

The plan of the promoters of the consolidation was to issue $32,000,000 in stock, equally divided between preferred and common shares. Twenty-two of the most important strawboard concerns in the country had optioned their business. These options still hold good, but at the same time the most recent delay in the deal has induced belief of some of those interested that it will fall through. The concerns to form the new company, which was to operate under a New Jersey charter, are scattered throughout the country east of the Mississippi river.

For years those in interest have, through an association, endeavored to regulate their business to make if profitable. In almost every year the price agreements have been violated and the different concerns turned readily to the consolidation plan as the best way to put the business on a substantial footing. The difficulty now is in the financing of the new company, and the delay may mean the collapse of the deal.

MISS STONE TO TALK TO PITTSBURGHERS

Will Deliver Lecture Here Telling of Her Capture and Treatment by Brigands.

Pittsburghers are to have the opportunity of hearing Ellen M. Stone, the missionary, tell of her six months' captivity among Turkish brigands, and her final release on payment of $65,000 ransom money. The object of the lecture, which is one of several comprising a tour, is for the purpose of securing sufficient funds to pay back the ransom money advanced by various institutions and private individuals. The affair will be interdenominational in character, inasmuch as the lecture will be under the patronage of all denominations in Pittsburgh and Allegheny. The following ministers have given their names in aid of the lecturer:

Bridgeville Man Dead—Charles Goldbach, 39 years old, a laborer living at Bridgeville, died yesterday at the Mercy hospital. He was struck by a traction car in the West End on April 14.

New Church Opened—The opening services of the new Center Avenue Baptist church were held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. Sermons were delivered by the Revs. L. C. Garland, corresponding secretary of the Baptist state convention, and A. F. Lee of the Wylie Avenue African Methodist Episcopal church.

Settlement Expected—Local No. 25, tile layers' helpers, who have been on strike since April 1, will hold a meeting this morning at their headquarters, No. 404 Smithfield street, and possibly arrange for a final settlement of the strike. Some of the employers have already met the wage demand of the men.

Claim He Used a Knife—Van Reynolds, colored, aged 24 years, was arrested at the corner of Fifth avenue and Soho streets last night at 10 o'clock by Lieut. William Crehan of No. 5 police station and locked up. He has been wanted by the police for having cut Katie Forbes, also colored, several days ago.

An Alliance Convention—The seventh annual convention of the Christian and Missionary alliance, No. 2, opened yesterday in the Fulton street mission. Several noted speakers were present. The convention will continue for 10 days. Tonight there will be a special missionary meeting.

Waited Too Long—Tarentum council has awarded the contract for the paving of Randolph street to Daniel Burns, for $14,000. Last fall his bid for doing the work was just $13,000, but it was refused. On account of the higher wages demanded by the men, the borough has lost $1,000 by waiting.

Fire in East Pittsburgh—The grocery store owned by the Bessemer Terrace Grocery Company at East Pittsburgh was destroyed by fire about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The interior of the building was burned out and the stock was totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $2,500. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Machinist Killed—Henry McLaughlin, a machinist living at No. 1002 Locust street was struck by a Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston railroad train yesterday on the South Side and had both legs crushed. He was removed to the West Penn hospital, but died from the shock before an operation could be performed.

Resistance Was Useless—Walter Vensel of Wilkinsburg had his right shoulder dislocated while resisting arrest at the hands of Policeman William Jones in Frankstown avenue Saturday night. The officer arrested Vensel and J. W. Brown for corner loafing when they resisted. In a tussle that followed Vensel was thrown to the sidewalk and his shoulder dislocated. He was taken to the Charity hospital.

To Complete $5,000,000 Hotel—J. C. Stewart, head of the big contracting firm of J. C. Stewart & Co. of Pittsburgh and St. Louis, will soon reach Manchester, England, to take up the completion of the $5,000,000 hotel of the Midland railway. Speed with which the British Westinghouse works were built by this interest led to an offer of a bonus of $100,000 if he would complete the hotel in a year and $10,000 additional for each month cut from the time.

Little Child Scalded—Louis Schiller, the 14-months-old child of Carl Schiller of West Homestead, died yesterday as the result of scalds received the day before. The little girl's mother had poured a pint tin bucket full of hot water and set the tin on the table in the kitchen. The child, playing about the room, upset the pail and the water fell on her face and breast. There were few marks and hardly any blisters, but the child died 12 hours after the accident. It is supposed that it must have swallowed some of the water and was scalded internally.

Burglars in Braddock—The home of Thomas Cosgrove, superintendent of the labor and transportation departments of the Edgar Thomson steel works, in Second avenue, Braddock, was entered by burglars about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Cosgrove heard them in the house, and the visitors took alarm at the creaking of the stairs while Mr. Cosgrove was going down armed, to meet them. The store and residence of James Singer, at 570 Corey avenue, Braddock, was also entered shortly after midnight, and two pocketbooks, containing in all about $18, and some jewelry and clothing, valued at $40, were taken.

Riot Call Turned In—A fight in a house at East and Valley streets, Allegheny, at 4 p. m. yesterday, caused a riot call to be sent in to the North Side police headquarters. Superintendent Henry Muth sent Detectives T. C. Johnston, Frank D. Aikens and Thomas J. O'Brien and Special Officer Charles Buscha to the scene of the trouble. They found that two Italians, Peter Lapolla and Louis Burrant, and two Americans, Reiney Herber and George Lightenhold, all of East street extension, had been drinking together in a house in East street and had had a fight. No one was seriously injured.

Homeless Waif Found—A 11-year-old colored girl was brought to the No. 2 police station last evening by Mrs. Anna Clark, colored, of Franklin street, who said she found the child in Fourth avenue while going to her home. The girl does not seem to be able to tell where she lives, at one time saying Croton street and again Pittsburgh street, neither of which are names of streets in Pittsburgh or Allegheny. The child claims she has been at Mrs. Clark's house for a week, but Mrs. Clark says it was yesterday afternoon she found her. An effort will be made to find her home.

Rector Had His Doubts—The officers of the Diocesean Union of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society had an odd experience last night. They went out to St. Rosella's church, the new parish lately established in Greenfield, to rouse up a temperance sentiment. The Rev. John G. Beane, president of the union, made an address in which he attacked the speakeasies, which, he said, he understood were plentiful in the neighborhood. Father McAvoy, rector of the parish, followed in the same line and was very severe in his denunciations of the illegal liquor sellers. Over 300 persons signed the pledge and among them were several of the speakeasy proprietors. Father McAvoy said he was confident that some of these would keep the pledge, but he had his doubts about a portion of them.

TWELVE PAGES

Make It Warm for Burglars.

Incidents continue to multiply in proof of the fact that Allegheny county is made the resort for gangs of burglars and thieves who for reasons sufficient to themselves seek friendly hiding places in Allegheny and Pittsburgh, from which points they ply their trade in the less thoroughly policed districts of the county. The successive order in which some recent crimes occurred and the similarity of the methods used indicate the work of a band of thieves who act in concert, and whose depredations cover a wide range of suburban country. The running to earth of two men implicated in the robbery of a store at Crafton has evidently given only a partial check to the work of the gang. In view of these facts there should be a systematic and vigorous effort made by the authorities to break up this despicable form of lawlessness. Such co-operation between the city and county police and law officers should be established as will add to the efficiency of both. Desperate diseases require desperate remedies and no legal effort that will serve to land the members of the villainous gang in prison should be left untried.

The Anthracite Situation.

While on the surface it looks very much like a strike in the anthracite coal regions, there is yet room for hope that the convention of miners' leaders to be held on Wednesday may find a way out of the difficulty. There is general agreement among those who have been in conference with the operators that if the employers did not accede to their demands they treated them fairly and courteously and did not close the door on them at the end of the conference. Therefore, while the feeling on both sides is one of friendliness it may be that the result of it will be some modification of demands or fresh proposals. The leaders who met the employers are in a frame of mind to consider the entire matter dispassionately and from a business standpoint. It is a business matter, pure and simple, and much depends on the ability of those to whom the conference committee will report to regard it as such.

Child Labor.

A timely and interesting article in the May Forum presents in brief a possible picture of the conditions of child labor in a number of the industrial centers of Great Britain, revealing a state of affairs that is truly appalling. This review is intended to show that despite the stringent laws enacted against many forms of child labor in England the practice is so widespread as to cause deep concern among social reformers. An investigation originating in the educational branch of the government develops the fact that in one section of the empire 33,489 children between the ages of 8 and 10 years are employed in some laborious work, though children between these ages are supposed by law to be in attendance upon school. This being so it naturally follows that either school is entirely neglected or else the labor of the children is prosecuted after school hours, which was found to be the case in a majority of instances. It is estimated that more than 300,000 children of tender years are engaged in some sort of labor throughout England. In getting at the cause of this wholesale use of child labor the investigation shows that dire necessity has driven the families of English laboring people to resort to the aid that the few pennies of the children afford in order to eke out a miserably insufficient existence.

England is lamentably behind in the education of her people and this report as to the prevalence of child labor in the kingdom may be taken as a partial explanation of that deficiency. Grinding poverty has forced the families of the working people to forego school opportunities and to become wage earners almost from the moment they leave the cradle. The writer of the article in the Forum very forcibly concludes with the declaration that it is at this point that the greatest danger lies to the future of English society among the laboring classes. Dwarfed and prematurely aged in physical manhood and womanhood by the effects of child labor the English working people are losing their power year after year to meet the competition of younger and stronger competitors. But worse even than this purely economic view of the case is the fact that mental and moral degradation is slowly sapping the life and strength from the English laboring classes. When the catastrophe of revolt or of decay comes, as come it must under these conditions, the results will be all the more horrible to contemplate.

The Fighting in Mindanao.

The suspension of military operations on the island of Mindanao, under instructions from Washington, was evidently interpreted by the Moros as a sign of weakness on the part of the American forces. They have not only ignored the ultimatum sent to them, but further manifested hostility by firing upon the American outposts. Under such circumstances it was incumbent upon Gen. Davis to accept the challenge, and he did so with a result that must have been surprising to the rebellious islanders, as their principal fort was soon captured by the valorous Americans.

It is to be regretted that the negotiations for peaceful establishment of American sovereignty in Mindanao were not brought to a successful conclusion, but the blame rests entirely upon the Moros. For a time all indications pointed to an agreement without bloodshed, but when an opportunity offered the latent treachery of the Malays asserted itself, and our soldiers were attacked. The sharp punishment inflicted upon the hostile natives will probably convince them of the error of their ways, but if it does not the fighting must go on until they have been subdued. The supremacy of the United States must be established in Mindanao, and no backward step can now be taken.

Watterson's Late Explanation.

Marse Henry Watterson, whose principal performance for several moons has been to step into the limelight and remark, "Teddy is a bronco buster," has paused to fix history and plead extenuating circumstances. It is an answer to his brethren of the Chattanooga Times and Vicksburg Herald, who accuse him of writing "crazy stuff," and twit him on his pyrotechnics of 1877. Something Mr. Watterson said recently has been declared by the Chattanooga Times to be "more foolish than the proposition of the same political firebug, 'In 1877, to bring 100,000 unarmed Kentuckians to Washington, to peacefully inaugurate Mr. Tilden, despite whatever congress might decide!'" The Vicksburg Herald was moved by the same or some other utterance of Mr. Watterson to declare:

> Watterson may, possibly, write more foolish things than his 1877 proposition, but never anything more mischievous and hurtful. No other single event so contributed to the success of the Tilden counter-out. It caused the Democratic leaders to stare aghast at the wild folly of the firebrand they gave the signal. It gave leaders the needed pretext for an act of audacious revolution. Since then the gifted Kentuckian has been located with that class of friends from whom deliverance was to be prayed.

The flings at the gifted editor of the star-eyed godess of blue grass reform are not in themselves remarkable. He has borne others akin to them for years with outward meekness and with seeming humility, all the while volcanic resentment has been seething in his breast. But these latest flings will live in history for having broken through the crust of Marse Henry's reserve. The lion slumbering in his bosom resents the latest intrusion and roars an answer. It is at once an explanation and a defense. In it Mr. Watterson speaks of "incident"—quoted—where his critics said "proposition" and "event." But here is what Marse Henry says:

> The "incident" referred to rests upon a speech, which was prepared in Gramercy park, revised by Mr. Tilden before it was publicly uttered, and delivered by authority. The idea did not originate with Mr. Watterson. The speech aimed to feel the pulse of the people. It embodied one of many suggestions, equally futile, which were made and laid aside, to reach some solution of a problem, menacing the peace of the country and puzzling the better-disposed men of both parties. It did not "feel worth a cent." It had no appreciable effect upon anything that followed. Six weeks later the electoral tribunal bill, a Democratic measure, was passed through congress by the aid of a minority of Republicans in the senate. And, after all these things, Mr. Watterson sat in four national conventions of his party, being chairman of the platform committee in two of them and a determining factor in the making of the platforms in the two others.

We cannot see that the explanation lets out the colonel, though it drags in the dead and gone sage of Gramercy park. Mr. Tilden may have loaded the gun, but Watterson fired it. Hereafter whoever twits Watterson on his 100,000 men in buckram with whom he threatened Washington must understand that he shakes a fist at the grave of Samuel J. Tilden. But why use his tombstone for a shield at this late day, Marse Henry? Why not have permitted it to go, as it has gone so long, as one of the indiscretions of youth? Wouldn't it have been better that way than to confess to having been used to finger the burning chestnuts?

Mr. Carnegie's Beneficence.

Although it has become quite a common thing to read almost every day of some new act of generosity on the part of Andrew Carnegie it is a little startling to have the statistics covering the wide range of his giving tell the story in cold figures. It is almost incredible of belief that one man has given away within a comparatively short period the enormous sum of $67,397,223 in public donations alone, to say nothing of the thousands of dollars that have gone to private needs. Here is a man who says that to die rich is to die disgraced, and who is demonstrating his good faith by giving away money at the rate of $111,000 a day.

It has remained for America and the twentieth century to produce conditions that make such an exhibition of public philanthropy possible.

While Mr. Carnegie stands alone in his unique methods of giving away money, he is not alone in giving expression to modern beneficence. There are other rich men who, while they may not hold Mr. Carnegie's views as to giving, are equally as sure that the truest and noblest privilege of wealth is to use it for the betterment of others.

Evans Goes to London.

By appointing Henry Clay Evans to the important and lucrative office of consul general of the United States in London, President Roosevelt has given great satisfaction to all who understand the efficiency and fidelity with which Mr. Evans performed the duties of commissioner of pensions. Doubtless Mr. Evans could have remained in his former place had he chosen so to do, for his services in a position of considerably difficulty had called forth high commendation from Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt; but he became weary of constant attacks and criticisms of pension agents, attorneys and others who found that he scrutinized applications too closely to suit them. Possibly Commissioner Evans was sometimes slow about granting pensions that were really deserved; but on the other hand, it was his duty to guard carefully the public funds in the interest of the taxpayers and of honest pensioners. For this careful work he should not be punished. This is evidently the president's opinion, for the office of consul general will give Mr. Evans far greater pecuniary recompense than the pension commissionership yielded.

An Asylum for Bribers.

Americans charged with bribery, who can make their escape into Mexico, are safe from extradition. This fact has been ascertained by the state department, which has been trying to induce the Mexican government to surrender Charles Kratz, once a member of the city council of St. Louis. Kratz was accused of bribery, and it was desired to try him, but he got away, and Mexico won't give him up. Our extradition treaty with that country does not put bribery on the list of extraditable offenses, but there is nothing to prevent Mexico from surrendering a bribery fugitive as an act of comity. It is difficult to understand why any country should willingly grant asylum to persons charged with crime. They are not usually desirable additions to the population. For this reason nations should be willing and even desirous to surrender wrongdoers to the country from which they have fled in order to escape punishment. Political offenses are generally recognized as those for which asylum should be granted, but criminal offenses should receive different treatment.

Melba and Nordica, Graul's famous songbirds who have been enemies for years, have kissed and made up, but the civic federation was not a factor in the reconciliation.

From the way the Pittsburgh club is playing ball it does not require the opinion of a supreme court to decide where the pennant will likely rest at the end of the season.

Only a Chapel, but a Fine Temple of Worship

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, May 4.

Of all the churches in New York thronged with worshipers today there is none better known than the beautiful St. Agnes chapel, on the upper West Side. This edifice, including the vicarage and parish house, belonging to Trinity parish, cost about $1,000,000. The mosaics in the chancel and altar alone are valued at $200,000. While the rector of Trinity is the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, the Rev. Charles T. Olmsted, D. D., is the vicar of St. Agnes, and his scholarly sermons attract immense congregations every Sunday. He is assisted by two curates, the Rev. Richard W. Sherman, Jr., and the Rev. William C. Hicks, and a priest assistant, the Rev. Eric H. Merriman. The music at St. Agnes is famed, not only in New York, but all over the country, and a large number of visitors from other cities are always in the congregation. The tenth anniversary of the opening of the chapel will be celebrated on Whitsunday, two weeks from today. Special music is in preparation for the occasion under the direction of the choirmaster and organist, C. Edward Stubbs, M. A., a musician well known in Pittsburgh and elsewhere for his remarkable talent. The choir of the church is what is known as a "show" choir, with its 45 singers and its excellent rendering of famous compositions by old and modern composers. Mr. Stubbs has written a great deal of sacred music that, is played and sung in the most important churches of this country and Europe. St. Agnes is known as a "chapel of ease," having been erected by Trinity corporation specially for the convenience of members living in the neighborhood. It occupies a large portion of the block bounded by Columbus and Amsterdam avenues and Ninety-first and Ninety-second streets. The congregation numbers about 1,800 and there are 1,300 communicants. Among the worshipers at St. Agnes are Nicholas F. Palmer, president of the Leather Manufacturers' bank; Frank Thomas of the Merchants' Exchange National bank; Dean Van Amringe of Columbia university; Viola Allen, the star actress; Mrs. Donald Ritchie McLean and many other prominent folk.

Changes of Theatrical Bills.

Theatricals along Broadway have changed their complexion with the falling of their curtains last night. "San Toy" has left Daly's; "The Last Appeal" has closed at Wallack's for the season; Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon have finished their run of "Her Lord and Master" at the Manhattan, and Francis Wilson in "The Toreador," has said goodby at the Knickerbocker. George W. Lederer's "The Wild Rose" is due at the last-named theater tomorrow night, and Mrs. Fiske, in "Tess of the d'Urbervilles," will open at the Manhattan on Tuesday. Edwin Brandt, who has been so successful as the King in "The Last Appeal," taking the place of D. H. Harkins when that sterling actor broke down on the opening night, will resume his place in the cast of "The Soldiers of Fortune" at the Savoy tomorrow night. The "last weeks"—whatever that may mean—of "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast," at the Broadway, are announced; but as the house is packed at every performance it is not likely the show will stop before it is absolutely obliged to do so. At Wallack's we are to have Edward E. Rice's new musical comedy, "The Show Girl," this week.

A Pittsburgh Theatrical Hustler.

James Forbes, the former Pittsburgher, is busy in theatricals here. He is associated with Henry Harris in managing Robert Edeson, Besie Tyree, "The Last Appeal" and one or two other attractions, all of which will go forth on the road in the fall under spectacular conditions. Mr. Forbes is doing all the press work for his various stars and plays, besides attending to other details of business that are always multitudinous in theatricals. He is one of the noted hustlers of the Rialto nowadays.

Erie Road Booming Jersey Suburbs.

The Erie railroad is "booming" New Jersey real estate along its line. It has attractive picture cards and other forms of advertisement all over New York city, and a man that writes the alluring suggestions of lovely country homes in as picturesque a style as Whiting Allen himself. He talks about the fresh, green lawns, the limpid streams, the fine country roads, the golf links and other advantages of the country, and mentions everything except the mosquitos. If they were considered an attraction, he would work them in. As it is, he forgets them. As a matter of fact, there is a rush of New Yorkers to Jersey for summer residences, and when those water meadows between Jersey City, Hackensack and Newark are filled in and made possible to traffic, the boom will increase in power. There should be a great future for Jersey within easy reach of New York city, and the Erie railroad is determined to be in on the ground floor.

Outfingered Magician Keller.

Keller, the magician was walking along Broadway today exchanging greetings with his friends, of whom he has a host in this city. He will open at the Victoria tomorrow night for a short engagement. He says he has some new and startling tricks of sleight-of-hand. It is not likely that he will produce anything more interesting than that played on him by a nimble "dip" the other day, who picked his pocket under his very nose. It was a mean trick to play on a "magician," but it worked. All the same Keller is "the" magician of the day.

New Jersey Summer Resorts.

New Jersey is to have a magnificent pleasure garden near Somerville. This has been settled for some time, and the work of transforming a farm of 1,600 acres into a park is going along steadily. James B. Duke is owner of the estate, and he is interested in colonizing the Raritan valley with wealthy people. So he has built 15 miles of drives on his property and has established a very large conservatory, besides a stone fountain that cost $80,000. The latest equipment for the park is a collection of 200 pieces of bronze statuary which has just arrived from abroad, to be disposed about the gardens under the personal direction of Mr. Duke.

Palmer Not a Quick Lunch Artist.

Arthur Palmer, formerly scenic artist at the Grand opera house, Pittsburgh, has established a studio at the Columbia theater, Brooklyn. He has a great deal of scenery to paint, and his brush is going as steadily as ever it did in the old days in Pittsburgh. With one or two exceptions Arthur Palmer is alone in his particular style of work, and there is a constant demand for it down here. Mr. Palmer has no use for the "quick lunch" method of scene-painting, which has come so much into vogue of late years; and he says that, fortunately, he can find plenty of people who admire the dignified, artistic style of work in which he was educated to give him more employment than he can handle.

Art Museum Reception.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art will hold its 38th annual reception tomorrow afternoon. The cards of invitation bear the name this year of F. W. Rhinelander as first vice president, a sad reminder of the museum's loss in the recent death of Mr. Marquand. As usual during the closing of the institution, many changes have been made, the interior having been repainted and cleaned and new work added in most of the departments.

Women Don Summer Millinery.

Straw hats were general on the "Avenue" and Broadway this morning; women's hats, that is. Not many men have ventured to come forth in a "boss-saw" or "straw alpine" thus early in the season, although an occasional Panama left over from last year was sported along Broadway, the wearers usually looking like southerners. Women's spring hats were all the go, however. Although the weather has been chilly and uncomfortable for the last few days, it is the spring season, and a woman who respects herself could not be expected to go to church in what she calls, bitterly, her "old" winter hat. So all who wanted to study styles in spring millinery had ample opportunity today, and without missing church, either.

A Speedy Week for Steamships.

Fast trips were made by ocean liners last week. The Lucania, which got into New York Friday night, made the best run from Liverpool in four years. The time from Baun's rock to Sandy Hook lightship was 5 days, 15 hours and 55 minutes. The American liner, Philadelphia, also did some fast work. She arrived at her dock in the North river yesterday, having made very good time across the Atlantic. She broke her record for a single day's fast run on the trip over from Southampton. On Wednesday last she made 507 knots. Her best previous single day's run was 505 miles, on November 8, last. The entire trip over this week was marked by good weather.

The Park May Day.

"May day" was observed yesterday in Central park. It has long been the custom to call the first Saturday in the month the 1st of May, so far as its celebration is concerned. It is a bit of fiction that suits the children, because Saturday is always a holiday, and there is no question about their being allowed to spend the day as they please. The weather was not pleasant yesterday, but there were 4,000 children in the park, all in spring finery, with garlands of flowers, fluttering ribbons, and all the rest of the traditional May decorations. There were fifes and drums for music, and lunches in baskets were a pleasant feature of the the jollification. The rule, "Keep off the grass," was waived for the occasion, and although it was decidedly damp, the youngsters did not mind that, and their parents had not the heart to interfere. Some of them may catch cold, but who cares for a cold, when there is May day fun in the air?

Theaters Come and Theaters Go.

Another theater is projected for this unhappy city. This time it is to be in Harlem and Henry Greenwall, who already controls theaters in Brooklyn and Manhattan, the Columbia and American respectively, is the man who intends to give Harlem another playhouse. There is one consolation in all this and that is that as new theaters are built the old ones down town will gradually be swallowed up by commerce and go to the rubbish heap with many another old favorite.

Robson and Crane on One Bill.

New York will have the pleasure next week of seeing Robson and Crane play together again, but only for a single performance. It will be on Thursday evening, the 15th, for the benefit of the Actors' home fund, at the Knickerbocker theater. The play will be poor Bronson Howard's greatest success, "The Henrietta." Robson will play Bertie, the Lamb, and Crane will do the hot-tempered broker, Van Alstyne. It will be the first time these two actors have played together since they separated 10 or 15 years ago.

Ready to Prosecute Molineux.

Assistant District Attorney Osborne came back from England Friday on the Lucania. He looked as if his vacation had done him good and he said he was all ready to take up his work again. Roland B. Molineux may or may not be pleased to hear that Osborne will prosecute him again for the forthcoming second trial, and he is in fine fettle for his task. Mr. Osborne said last night: "While in London I spent four days in the old Bailey court house, where I witnessed the trial of a young man charged with murdering his sweetheart in a swamp. The prisoner was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence. The way they have of conducting murder trials is much more expeditious than ours."

Gates Liberal With Perfectos.

According to an observant man, John W. Gates, who smokes 80-cent cigars and smokes them almost incessantly while not eating or sleeping, has made an innovation in Wall street which is characteristic of the man. The customers' room in Harris, Gates & Co.'s office at 16 Wall street has a heavy oak table for the reception of books and files. For the past few days this table has been adorned by an exquisitely cut glass jar with a silver cover, and this jar is kept stocked with excellent cigars. It is the privilege of the busy trader who does not wish to take his eyes off the board long enough to take a turn into the corridor, to help himself to these Perfectos. Whether this is a bid for more trade is a matter that the members of the firm can answer better than anybody else, but there is not the least doubt about its popularity. The speculators and investors watch the market changes through rings of Gates' smoke, helping Gates' bull movements and reading Gates' bulletins.

PERSONALS.

Capt. C. C. Clark of the Fifth United States infantry, who had been stationed in the Philippine islands for the past several years, passed through the city last night on his way to Washington, D. C., over the Pennsylvania railroad. He is on a leave of absence, which expires August 25 next. He has not seen his family for four years and was very anxious to get back to his home in Washington. "You know we army officers must not criticise or praise our superiors, Gen. Jacob H. Smith has proved himself to be a gallant officer, and will most likely be acquitted by the court-martial. I have never seen the water cure administered, but I don't think it is as cruel as has been made out. For the past year I was on duty in the commissary department in Northern Luzon. The three provinces of Pangasinan, Union and Illocos Sur have been pacified and the natives are now planting their rice and tilling their farms. These provinces were the first to be put under civil government. The natives of them are not yet fully trusted, and all convoys passing through have a strong guard accompanying them. There are still many Spaniards in Northern Luzon whose property was confiscated by the insurgents before the American troops entered the island. They are waiting in expectation that they will recover their land through the agency of the United States government, but this is doubtful. There are no friars in these provinces, as they are not liked by the natives."

M. W. Jacobs, a carpet dealer in St. Louis, passed through Pittsburgh last night over the Pennsylvania railroad to New York. "I am going east," he said, "to place my fall orders. I hardly think there will be any advance in carpets this season, but all lines of upholstery will be much higher. The New England weavers have made a demand for higher wages and have given the manufacturers until May 25 to answer the demand."

J. L. Fording, a mechanical engineer of London, England, went to Cleveland over the Pittsburg & Lake Erie yesterday. "I am simply on an educational jaunt," he remarked, "and will shortly return to Pittsburgh to visit all the large manufacturing plants where I may be able to pick up some new ideas."

Miss Bell Harper, a member of the Bostonians, arrived in the city over the Pennsylvania railroad last night. A short time before her train entered Union station a special train from Columbus brought the company to the city. Miss Harper lost a week with the company owing to illness.

County Recorder George M. von Bonnhorst went to Philadelphia last night over the Pennsylvania railroad.

E. K. Morse of No. 235 Craig street attended the celebration of the 80th birthday of his father, H. K. Morse, in Poland, O., yesterday. It was a quiet affair and consisted merely of a reunion of all the children. Mr. Morse's father was born in Wallingford, Conn., May 4, 1822. Later the family removed to Poland.

President F. L. Robbins and Vice President John D. Nicholson and other officials and directors of the Pittsburgh Coal Company are back from Jersey City, where last week, the stockholders voted for the issue of $6,000,000 in bonds. THE DEATH ROLL.

Potter Palmer.

CHICAGO, May 4.—(Special.)—Potter Palmer died of heart failure at his palatial home on the Lake Shore drive this afternoon. He had been suffering with stomach trouble for about three weeks and had spent most of that time in bed, but a fatal result had not been anticipated by the family or the physician in attendance. The first intimation Mrs. Palmer had that her husband's illness was in the least degree critical came Saturday night, when he complained of slight fever. Just a half century of Mr. Palmer's life was spent in Chicago, whither he came from New York state in 1852. His fortune, all told, at that time was a few thousand dollars. He invested in a dry goods store and instituted a system of confidential relations with customers that was then novel in the mercantile world. This system brought him such wonderful increase in patronage that merchants came from the east to investigate and emulate his example. At the height of his prosperity in this direction he formed a partnership with Marshall Field and Levi Leiter, now both men of great wealth, in a big dry goods house. The partnership continued until 1867. He commenced the building of the first Palmer house, a hotel, just in time to have it destroyed by the big fire, together with every other building owned by him. He is said to have lost $3,000,000 by this fire. He borrowed a like amount from eastern security concerns, rebuilt his ruined property and in a very few years had recovered from his financial disaster. It is estimated that his wealth aggregates $25,000,000, the great bulk of which is in Chicago real estate. The Palmer house corner alone is said to be worth $10,000,000. He is survived by Mrs. Palmer, admittedly the social leader of Chicago, and by two sons, Honore Palmer, a member of the city council, and Potter Palmer, Jr. Mr. Palmer was a native of Pennsylvania, Albany county, N. Y., where he was born in 1826.

News of the death spread rapidly over the city, and intimate friends of the Palmer family called at the home early. Oldtime associates of Mr. Palmer's such as Judge Lambert Tree, Marshall Field, Levi Z. Leiter and Erskine Phelps were informed. Robert T. Lincoln, H. H. Kohlsaat and R. W. Patterson called. It was at first intended by the family to prepare an official statement as to Mr. Palmer's death, which should incorporate the views of the attending physicians, but this plan was changed and Mrs. B. L. Honore gave out such statements as were desired. She said that nothing could have been more of a surprise to the family, and that she was positive that Mr. Palmer himself had never realized that death was near.

State Funeral of Amos Cummings.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—In pursuance of the resolution adopted by the house yesterday, public memorial services were held over the remains of the late Representative Amos J. Cummings of New York in the hall of representatives this afternoon. Only twice before in recent years has such an unusual honor been accorded to a deceased representative, these occasions being the state funerals of Representative John Kelly of Pennsylvania and of Representative Nelson Dingley of Maine. The exercises today were very impressive. Almost the entire membership of the house and senate was present, and the galleries were entirely inadequate to hold the throngs who went to the capitol seeking admission. Delegations from the department of New York, G. A. R., Typographical Union No. 6, the New York Pilots' association and various other carrier associations were in attendance. The floral tributes were numerous and of the most exquisite character. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, a Presbyterian, and the Rev. D. J. Stafford, a Catholic. The remains of Mr. Cummings, accompanied by the committees of the two houses, were started to New York tonight.

Congressman Peter J. Otey.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Congressman Peter J. Otey of the Sixth Virginia district, died in Lynchburg, his home, this afternoon. Word to this effect was received at the sergeant-at-arms office of the house of representatives tonight. Mr. Otey was a Democrat. He was well known in the south as a business man before he came to congress. He had been active in the politics of his state since 1869, but never held office until 1894, when he was elected to the house of representatives, since which time he had been a member of that body. He was born in Lynchburg in 1840, and was graduated from the Virginia Military institute. While a cadet he participated in the defense of Virginia in the John Brown raid. After graduating he became a civil engineer. In 1861 he joined the confederate army and participated in the western campaign culminating at Donelson and Shiloh.

He was born in Armstrong county, May 18, 1851, and in 1873 came to Greenville for the purpose of attending Thiel college, at which institution he spent three years. In 1880 he graduated from the college of physicians and surgeons of Baltimore. Dr. Shutt commenced practice here in 1880 and the same year was married to Miss Mary Bitterbanner. He was one of the charter members of the Mercer County Medical society, and has been its secretary for a number of years. As a Democrat he served several terms in council. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nancy Hood Meek, and two children, W. J. Meek and Mrs. Charles A. Cooper of Coraopolis.

Jefferson Saltsman.

TORONTO, O., May 4.—(Special.)—Jefferson Saltsman died here today from pneumonia. He had been a continuous resident of this place for 38 years, and was born in this county, November 17, 1817. He leaves a large family, who are also identified prominently with the city.

TRUST ATTEMPTS TO GRASP RETAIL TRADE IN COUNTRY

Making an Effort to Force Out Dealers in Small Towns.

IS BUYING ALL THE STOCK

Pays Higher Prices in Order to Corner Market in Western Pennsylvania Live Stock—Will Then Force Retailers to Become Its Agents.

Not satisfied with the control of the retail meat trade in Pittsburgh and other large cities, the beef trust is reaching out still further in an endeavor to dominate the retail market everywhere. Up to this time, the retail dealers in towns like Greensburg, Indiana, Blairsville, Monongahela, Washington, Kittanning and others, have been able to avoid the domination of the trust by their ability to obtain country beef and other live stock in the immediate vicinity of the town in which their business is conducted.

This local supply, in no way dependent on the action of the packers, has enabled the retail dealers to name their own prices. Now this local supply is being taken out of their hands and many of the retail dealers are being driven out of business. The meat trust has been secretly buying all of the live stock obtainable throughout Western Pennsylvania. They have been paying higher prices for meat on the hoof than the local retailers.

As a consequence the small dealers have been forced to go to the trust for meat, paying trust prices, or else meet the advance of the trust for live stock in the country districts. Retail prices have been forced upward, people of small means have been unable to afford their usual allowances of meat, and many retail dealers are being forced to the wall on account of the dearth of purchasers. This is the very thing that the trust has been working for.

The retail dealers, however, are getting together in an endeavor to maintain their rights, and will make an appeal to the stock raisers to give them aid by refusing to sell to the beef trust. Their case will set forth the fact that this action is also the interest of the stockmen, because if they are squeezed out the trust, having no competition in any line, can establish not only to fix the selling price of meat, but also the price to be paid the farmer and drover.

At the East Liberty stock yards a good fair stock market is expected today. Ninety cars of cattle, about 2,000 head, will be disposed of. This is called a "pretty good run," by local live stock men. In addition to the cattle the day's run will dispose of about 6,500 hogs and 2,000 sheep. It is bad hog weather, as it is too warm to do any packing. Prices are expected to be stationary. The high prices have fallen off because at prevailing prices export of live stock has been stopped.

NAVAL TARGET PRACTICE.

Admiral Dewey and Others Embark on Their Voyage of Inspections.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Admiral Dewey, Rear Admiral Taylor, chief of the bureau of navigation; Lieut. Niblack, inspector of target practice, and the other members of the special board of inspection which is to visit the vessels of the North Atlantic squadron now lying off the Virginia capes, left Washington today aboard the Dolphin. The regular board of inspection will leave Washington tomorrow night for Norfolk, where the Gloucester will be placed at their disposal for the inspection.

Admiral Dewey and the members of the general board of the navy have prepared plans for some important maneuvers which the vessels of the squadron will perform next week. The regular board of inspection will look over the vessels from a standpoint of what can be recommend the repairs made necessary by their long cruise in tropical waters. The vessels will have target practice off the capes and enable Lieut. Niblack, inspector of target practice, to observe their performances in this respect.

RUSH FOR AMERICA BEATS THE RECORD

NEARLY 200,000 IMMIGRANTS ARRIVE SINCE JANUARY 1.

Twenty-Five Thousand Europeans Seek New Homes in America Within the Last Week—Portions of Italy Almost Depopulated—Police Have Trouble.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—The rush of immigrants to this port which has signalized the first four months of the year, reached a climax the week ending tonight, during which time 25,120 immigrants have been brought to this city from various European ports. The total number of immigrants arriving here for the four months ending April 30, was 178,604, an excess of more than 30,000 over any previous year for the same period.

By months the record this year is: January 18,243, February 29,515, March 57,175, April 73,667. When it is mentioned that the total number landing here last year was 448,868 it will be seen that 1902 has started out as a record breaker.

No less than 12,140 immigrants were landed at Ellis Island yesterday and today and in addition to this 1,100 were left aboard the steamer Tartar Prince to be landed tomorrow. In all the history of handling immigrants through the barge office landing the police never had so much trouble to restrain the crowds which flocked to the battery to see the people come over from Ellis Island today. Added to the hundreds who had friends or relatives whom they came down to meet there were several thousand idlers who, attracted by the sight of the immigrants coming off the boat, crowded upon the sidewalk in front of the barge office and simply refused to move on until driven back by sheer force.

Among the passengers on the French line steamer Bretagne was Capt. Siellano of the Italian army who comes here by his government to investigate and report on the emigration from his country to America. He says that the enormous exodus from certain districts of Italy threatens to depopulate those sections and his mission is to learn the cause of the unusually large emigration and devise means to curtail it.

MAJ. GARDENER MAY BE COURT-MARTIALED

Administration Incensed Because He Made Wild Charges Without Evidence to Back Them.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Failure to substantiate the allegations made by him in his report, showing disgraceful conditions in Tayabas, Luzon, will be followed, it is said here, by the court-martial of Maj. Cornelius Gardener, who was civil governor of that province.

Maj. Gen. Chaffee's message that "Maj. Gardener has filed few specifications, very general in character, and practically paragraphing his report," has aroused considerable indignation in administration circles. Before making the serious allegations he did, it is insisted that Maj. Gardener should have been certain of his facts and able to back them up with proof. Instead, it is said, he submitted an irresponsible report, making general charges of a heinous character against army officers and their commands stationed in Tayabas.

The belief prevails at the department that Gen. Smith has been acquitted by the court-martial at Manila. Gen. Chaffee will review the case and will forward it with his indorsement to Washington for action by the president. Mr. Roosevelt purposes to personally review the findings of the court and if they are not in accordance with the evidence, he will set them aside; but he cannot order a new court or adjudge any punishment in case of the acquittal of the accused officer.

IN THE OIL FIELDS.

Developments in the lower southwest fields during the past week were not without some interesting features. The unexpected staying qualities of some of the new producers recently completed was quite gratifying. The gusher on the S. S. Eddy farm in Greene county, it was thought would decline rapidly, but it rounded out the week at the rate of 500 barrels a day, and the test well on the W. N. Cunningham farm in the northeast end of the new Gordon sand development in Wetzel and Marion counties had a record for the corresponding time almost as good as the Eddy well. One of the most important discoveries of the week was made in this territory when the South Penn Oil Company drilled in its No. 1 on the Fairfield Peterson farm, located in the southwest end of the development and got a producer that started to flow at the rate of 400 barrels when drilled into the pay streak. As far as developed this territory shows a continuous streak, running northeast and southwest for a distance of nearly three miles. The production at the present time is close to 1,000 barrels a day from eight wells.

In Marshall county the Fish Creek district made a good showing. The South Penn Company drilled in its No. 2 on the Nathan Shepherd farm and got the best natural producer that has been developed in that end of the development. The well produced 289 barrels the first 24 hours after the drill tapped the pay streak. The production of this Gordon sand district is increasing and will go higher before it has been fully developed. In point of activity it is the leader of all developments in the lower southwest. To the northeast, the South Penn Oil Company is drilling in the sand at an important test well on the J. C. McIlvaine farm. Should this well come in a good producer it will advance the productive territory some distance in the northeast. In this and the "Little Germany" district, six of the largest wells have a production of more than 1,000 barrels a day to the aggregate.

Nothing new has been introduced in the new Gordon sand territory in the Littleton district in Wetzel county. A very creditable start has been made toward testing the new pool, but it will be some time before any of the test wells will reach the sand.

In the vicinity of Salem, Harrison county, there is great activity, and the volume of work under way is exceeded by that in Marshall county only. A large amount of this work is of an experimental nature. The wells now being completed are not in the gusher class, but are of a size to encourage operations. At the present the best of the new producers are located on Grass run, 2½ miles northeast of Salem. In this district, Gartlan & O'Day & Bros. are due in the sand at an important test well on the E. W. Custer farm. The best producer at this time is the South Penn Oil Company's No. 6 on the S. C. Barnes farm. It is producing 270 barrels a day.

Lewis county is nearing the end since the development of the Beatts Mills fifth sand development. All of the late wells in this territory have come in light producers or duster. Only one "gusher" got one of the latter kind when it drilled its No. 8 on the D. E. Ramsburg farm through the lower producing formation. No. 7 on the same farm was completed and is not good for more than 30 barrels a day. To the southwest the South Penn Company is drilling in the sand at a test well on the Mary J. Casey farm, and has a show for a producer. If it proves as good as indicated at the close of the week, it will show a slight extension in the direction named.

Northeast of the fifth sand development on Indian Fork in Gilmer county, the last few wells have been a little better producers than those found in the older part of the pool.

On Big Kent run, Clay district, Ritchie county, there is a Keener sand pool that is claiming some attention. The territory is spotted and the wells of a flashy nature.

Operators are trying to work up a salt sand development in Murphy district in Ritchie county and the indications for success are rather promising, so far the best wells do not exceed 20 barrels a day.

In the shallow sand territory in Pleasants county, nothing better than small wells and dusters were found during the week. Within the next few weeks active operations will be resumed in this county. The bad condition of the roads have caused much delay in this district.

Southeastern Ohio.

The only district on the Ohio side attracting any attention is the new Keener sand pool near Jerusalem, Monroe county. Late in the week the Unity Oil Company drilled in a test well on the Shannon Jones farm, located 500 feet east of the same company's producer on the E. J. Harper farm, and have a well showing for 150 barrels a day. This is the third well that the Unity Company has drilled in this development and all are producers. In the southwest considerable experimental work is starting.

The usual number of wells was completed in the shallow sand territory in Morgan and Washington counties, but none call for special mention.

In the Speechley sand territory in Butler county a half dozen or more wells were completed, but none above the average in size. The producing area is not extending.

PRISCILLA'S PENCIL

Has found dots, dots everywhere, in all colors, in all sizes and in all kinds of fabrics. One of the prettiest to be found just now is the pin-dotted swiss in colors on a white ground. A gown of this sort, with dots of scarlet, was made up for a summer afternoon wear for a young girl just out of school, with exceedingly jaunty effect. It has sash ribbon and stock of taffeta matching the dots, and is made quite simply with adornment of tucking, which gathers the dots together in a faint red line outlining the tucks. Another gown similar to this but in blue will be worn for home evenings by a young matron who believes in the expenditure of time and taste on her house gowns, and one in pale delicate green offers alluring premonitions of seashore days.

Black and White—
Is one of the best possible combinations for shirt waists, and most of the shops, in response to the general demand from womankind, have placed plenty of black and white among their shirt waist remnants. In percale or lawn it is unquestionably fresh and dainty and has the advantage of going nicely with either black or white finishing ribbons.

For Belt Pins—
The little circular or open work enamel pins which were popular for brooches a few years ago are displacing the round, solid-stoned pins, whose size has been so exaggerated. The miniature pin is hopelessly passe, and in most of its forms hopelessly vulgar; the smaller and more unobtrusive the fastener at the belt line the better taste it indicates.

Something New in Low Shoes—
Is the extra tongue, fitted with a square or oval buckle, which may be attached to any slipper, by its mere presence transforming the commonplace opera-toed affair into the fashionable colonial. It may be used likewise on oxford ties with good effect.

White Ribbons—
To look well must be exquisitely clean and fresh. The wash ribbons which have made themselves so useful and popular since their introduction some years ago, to have the best appearance after tubbing, should be ironed with a moderately hot iron, while still quite wet, the iron kept moving over them until they are quite dry. This gives body and stiffness. If still greater firmness is desired a souse in gum arabic water carries the good result still further.

Black Chiffon Hats—
Which are tilted up daringly over the left eye gain a charming effect of softness in their brims by having a few creamy white roses nestled close under the curling brim.

French Frocks—
For little maids are to be more popular than ever this summer, if one may judge from present indications. In all the shops where little frocks are sold, and in all the departments where little frocks are made, these long-waisted, short-skirted affairs appear, some simply fashioned as befits morning wear and others ruffled and frilled to fit the gayest of parties. A charming model noted the other day was of white cambric, very fine and sheer, made with low, square neck and short puffed sleeves. The entire frock—neck, sleeves, line between waist and skirt and the closing edge, which was brought down one side of the front—was outlined by a simple embroidery beading, an inch wide, through which blue ribbon was run. With white socks and little strap slippers, the yellow-haired lassie who will wear this will surely present a pleasing picture for beauty lovers.

White Shirtwaists—
Especially of madras or pique, if bought at the shops, are usually more satisfactory than those made at home, provided they fit well. And herein lies a trick known only to the clever and resourceful woman. She buys all her fine white shirtwaists made—ready-made—paying a good price for them and getting the real tailor finish, which very few dressmakers can give. These she has laundered, or rather washed and ironed without starch, and then with them she hies to her dressmaker and has a few trifling alterations made, which are necessary to insure a perfect fit. For the price of a ready-made waist she thus secures one of perfect fit and tailor finish—no small item to the woman who desires always to be smartly dressed.

The Lawn Stocks—
In colors and white, which are so cool and dainty looking for shirtwaist wear, should always be slightly starched when laundered, otherwise they are likely to wrinkle and fold up in most unsatisfactory fashion when worn.

For Summer Best—
Chalil and albatross have not lost their hold, in spite of the universal popularity of the foulard. A gown of dull blue albatross made over glace silk, and in combination with deep cream heavy lace, makes a handsome gown and is not uncomfortable even in hot weather for formal occasions. The chalil may be made more simply, but are equally pretty, especially when made with plenty of ribbons about them.

All the Hats—
Must perforce turn up this summer. The down drooping affairs with flat bow and underbrim trimming had so thorough an inning last season that they fairly outwore their welcome, and a return to the smart, trig appearance natural to the American face, with its small pert features and slender outline, is entirely to be expected. The lackadaisical style is not favored by Americans, hence the smart boat shapes prevalent this year, and the decided turn up which shows itself on every hat of fashionable stamp. A round black straw, soft in finish, and simply trimmed with a scarf of straw gauze or of real gauze for that matter is the preferred hat for ordinary everyday wear, and looks well with any sort of gown.

The Filet Laces—
Or those with square mesh, which were bought and sold so profusely in this country last autumn and winter, have been entirely discarded in Paris and are not seen on any of the handsome imported gowns. Paris never took to them very warmly, and the celebrated fashion parade of the Parisian spring this year determined their doom as far as the higher powers are concerned.

White Kid Belts—
For wear with dark blue linen gowns are shown in various widths and the prettiest, softest finish imaginable. They are not suitable at all for white shirt waists, being too creamy in tint, but with dark blue or the fresh looking brown holland they give a very dainty finish.

For Summer Petticoats—
An echo of the Jenness-Miller patterns of some ten years ago is promised. The summer skirts must necessarily be light in weight, dust shedding and made in the most comfortable fashion. An East End modiste who combines some hygienic notions with her dressmaking ability has turned out several divided skirts of light Japanese silk to be worn under light gowns. They are always comfortable, and they are exceedingly graceful as well.

This exquisite gown is developed in delicate lavender tones. Narrow lace inserting is used throughout the waist and skirt. A dainty lace-edged ruffle outlines the shoulders and vest. The sleeves reach to the elbow. A graceful violet chiffon girdle encircles the waist.

CURRENT MODES.

Bowknots, butterflies and even birds worked in white upon the sheerest white linen are artistically scattered over deep petticoat flounces of pale linen.

Some of the new batistes have a tiny stripe in Persian effect. Fancy crepe is another of the summer novelties.

Although coral threatens to become too popular in time, as yet it remains a favorite. It is sometimes set with pearls in really beautiful design.

High neck and low neck gowns alike share the elbow sleeve. The narrow front gore is embroidered in an openwork device similar to muslin.

A noticeable new hat is large and round, the thick brim covered with lace which falls below the shoulders in back.

For linen and pique gowns, bands of dotted linen appear as trimming on plain colors or the stripes and are in contrasting shades to the material itself. When embroidery is used, it is in the plain bands; there are no full ruffles nor flounces. Many of the prettiest gowns are only trimmed with an embroidery of the linen itself, or scallops, and all in white, unless on a white linen gown, when the embroidery is effective in color. White pique frocks are braided with two or three widths of white braid. Fancy round braids, white with a line of blue or red, are being used. With this braiding, collars, revers and cuffs of plain linen, the same color, are smart.

In modes for little people, as in styles for adults, exquisite hand work is the latest word of refinement in dress. Fine hand embroidery is the most fashionable decoration introduced on children's frocks. Hemstitching and feather stitching are much used—and with dainty effect. The embroideries are so beautiful that the lawn and nainsook gowns will be more attractive than ever. Lace is always popular as a trimming, and there is no prettier kind of a gown for a little girl than dotted mull trimmed with lace insertion and edging.

HOUSEKEEPERS' NOTEBOOK.

To clean silver spoons, knives and forks in everyday use, rub with a damp cloth dipped in baking soda and polish with a piece of chamios leather.

Whalebone—When whalebone is too bent for use, soak it is tepid water for some hours. Dry on a flat surface and the whalebone will be as good as new.

Repairing ceramics—No household should be without the means to repair china and bric-a-brac at a moment's notice, for a broken dish, jug or ornament, if neglected, soon finds its way into the waste basket, a fate from which it might have been saved by a few minutes' work if taken in hand at once. Even the very best cements are useless unless carefully and properly applied. Before attempting to join the fractured parts make sure that they are perfectly clean and free from grease and grit. The broken edges should be well washed in a strong solution of lye or soap and not touched by the naked hand, as the fingers are very likely to be greasy. The least possible amount of cement should be used, the edges being brought closely together and kept there until the cement is solid. A piece of copper wire is better for this purpose than a string, as the wire can readily be tightened by twisting and holding the fragments in a firmer grip. For cementing wooden articles nothing is equal to liquid glue. The fractured edges must be well matched and closely bound together until dry. Glue may also be used for repairing fine glass vases, etc., though jeweler's cement is excellent for this purpose.

To preserve the fresh color of vegetables boil fast in plenty of water, with cover of kettle off.

Never use soap when cleaning matting. When washing is necessary use warm soft water, with a little salt dissolved in it.

Make tough meat tender by washing it in vinegar, rinsing this off before cooking the meat.

Rub articles stained with eggs or from baking custards, etc., with salt. The brown stains at once come off.

Ammonia and powdered borax in warm water should be used frequently for washing toilet sponges.

JORDAN WATER USED.

Braddock Pastor Baptizes Many Persons With Liquid Brought from the Holy Land.

About 45 persons, men, women and children, were baptized in the Braddock Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning with water from the River Jordan. The Rev. Dr. N. H. Holmes, pastor, administered the sacrement.

Dr. Holmes arrived home from the Holy land about ten days ago and brought with him a quantity of water dipped from the River Jordan, where the Saviour was baptized. Last night Dr. Holmes preached to a large congregation on "The Knights of Malta, and Heroic Defense of Christianity."

ARRAIGNED PRESENT CITY ADMINISTRATION

Speaker at Socialist Meeting Aroused Enthusiasm by Denunciation of Political Assessment System.

Fully 800 people attended a meeting of the Socialist Labor party in the Bijou theater yesterday afternoon, which was addressed by Lucien Sanial, the noted agitator of New York city. Speeches were also delivered by local lights. James McConnell of Wilkinsburg who was announced as a recent convert of the cause, made the introductory appeal which was a bitter attack upon the capitalistic class.

H. C. Goff, the chairman of the meeting, aroused considerable enthusiasm by a severe arraignment of the Pittsburgh city government.

He said: "The Socialist Labor party has to depend upon the voluntary offerings to meet expenses as the organization does not possess a financial bureau.

"We have not the power or disposition to assess the policemen, the firemen, the janitor, the scrubwoman and the messenger as do those in control of our city government. For corruption and brutal cowardice, there is not a city government on the face of the globe that can equal Pittsburgh."

This declaration was greeted with loud applause by the audience.

Lucien Sanial met with an enthusiastic reception when he appeared before the audience. He spoke upon the topic, "Capitalism vs. Socialism." He asserted that the socialistic idea was becoming more popular every day and present social conditions were favorable to the speedy success of the movement.

JAILED FOR DEBT.

Impoverished Father of Six Children Incarcerated Six Weeks for Court Costs.

TRENTON, N. J., May 4.—George W. Foster, who has a wife and six children, has been locked up in the Mercer county jail for the past six weeks because of his failure to pay the court charges in an ejectment suit instituted against him by his landlord. Foster was taken into custody by the sheriff under a statutory law which provides for the taking of the body where the court charges are not paid.

Foster, through his wife, has made the facts in his case public and friends are now interesting themselves to secure his release. Foster says he is unable to pay the cost until he is released to give him a chance to go to work. He claims he was sick at the time he got behind in his rent and proceedings were instituted to dispossess him.

BUGLE SOUNDED LAST TIME FOR TWO SOLDIERS

Pittsburgh Boys, Who Gave Up Lives for Their Country Laid to Rest.

FULL MILITARY HONORS

Local Organizations Turned Out to Render Simple Yet Impressive Honors That Are Given to America's Patriots Who Die in Service.

"Taps" were sounded for the last time yesterday for two Pittsburgh boys who gave up their lives for their country in the far off Philippines. Draped in the national colors their coffins were borne to the last resting place, with the military honors that mark the burial of an American soldier, who has died on the field of battle.

Corporal John D. Campbell, and Private William W. Heaps, both of whom died in the Philippines more than a year ago, were laid away, the former in the South Side cemetery and the latter in the Mt. Lebanon cemetery.

Both Campbell and Heaps met death at the hands of the Filipinos about the same time. Their bodies were brought to this country together, and to Pittsburgh about the same time, and curiously enough were buried in the same vicinity and with the same local military organization taking part in the ceremony.

Campbell's mother and sisters live in McKeesport. His body reposed in Semmelroek Bros.' mortuary, and there his sorrowing friends and relatives gathered yesterday afternoon to pay a last mark of loving tribute to his memory. The Rev. Dr. C. M. Miller of the Bingham Street Methodist Episcopal church conducted the services both in the South Side and at the cemetery.

With Military Honors.

The interment took place in the South Side cemetery, which is away up on the hill back of Knoxville, and a considerable distance from the city. Very few people followed the casket to its last resting place, but a great number of people who were watching the beautiful afternoon among the green trees and shrubs of the cemetery gathered with respectful attention about the grave.

The coffin containing the body was draped with the American flag and covered with flowers. It stood on a bier draped with the flag for which Campbell gave up his life at Batiotio, in an unequal contest with bolomen. Chairs were placed near the casket for the family and they seated themselves when Dr. Miller took up the reading of the church's burial ritual.

He read through the short and pretty service and then made a few remarks. The military organizations, the Spanish-American War Veterans, Duquesne Greys and Washington Light Infantry, had not arrived yet, and there was some delay in waiting for them, but they finally came and then the body was laid to rest to the accompaniment of muffled drum and that bugle call so dear to the heart of the tired soldier, "Taps."

Former Comrades Bore Casket.

The funeral services over the remains of Private Heaps were held in St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, Sixth avenue, at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Private Heaps had been a member of the Duquesne Greys when he enlisted in the regular service in April, 1899, and that body, with the Washington Infantry and the veterans of the late war, belonging to different organizations, attended the funeral, accompanied by a band.

The casket, covered with the American flag and flower tributes, reposed at the foot of the altar in the church, which was filled with sorrowing relatives and friends of the dead soldier. The Rev. Dr. Edward H. Ward, pastor of the church, read the simple yet beautiful ritual of the Protestant Episcopal church, a surpliced choir of four men intoning part of the responses.

After the short and appropriate service had been finished the choir sang "Lead, Kindly Light," slowly and softly, and after the singing of the hymn the church-full of people slowly emptied itself, and in the street the military organizations were filed up, waiting for the casket to be carried out. Soon six men of the Duquesne Greys appeared in the doorway with the casket, still flower-covered, on their shoulders. They marched slowly down the steps and up in front of the long line of men to Grant street, where the hearse waited.

When they appeared in view the band, which occupied the right of the line, struck up a slow and mournful dead march. The casket was deposited in the hearse and the long march to Mt. Lebanon cemetery was started.

At the grave the simple honors of the military funeral, given to general and private alike, were observed, and the casket laid in its grave, and with the "Ashes to ashes, dust to dust," the funeral was over and all that was mortal of William W. Heaps had been laid to its long rest.

SABBATH BREAKING MUST BE TERMINATED

The Rev. J. T. McCrory Warned His Congregation Against the Inducements to Avoid Church.

"The Importance of Keeping the Sabbath," was the subject of an instructive sermon preached, yesterday morning, by the Rev. J. T. McCrory in the Third United Presbyterian church.

"God chides the people," said Dr. McCrory, "who profess to serve and obey, because of their departure from sincerity and good sense. Isaiah says the unreasonable do not show as much good sense as animals that do, by instinct. He called attention to unchristian conduct which in itself condemns them. There is nothing more becoming in the Christian than sincerity and reason at all times, but this is especially true in reference to religion, because of its eternal importance. Nothing breaks down the moral constitution like insincerity and want of seriousness as to religion.

"This is the season of the year for the young man, and the old man, and men and women in general to fortify themselves against the dangers of Sabbath desecration. Inducements of every variety are held out to make an excuse for you to stay away from the church. It is our most sacred and solemn duty to see that the day of the Lord is not desecrated. We must not desecrate it ourselves, and we must discourage the tendency of the age to desecrate it. More, we must wipe away for all time, must blot out the inducements that lead men and women to make the Sabbath a day of fun, hilarity, of sensuous gratification."

HEAVENLY LAWS ON THIS EARTH NOT IMPOSSIBLE

Sermon on the World's Future at Grace Reformed Church.

"I SERVE" A TRUE MOTTO

The Rev. J. Garland Hamner, Secretary Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, Sees Great Advance in the Universal Brotherhood of Man.

The Rev. J. Garland Hamner, national secretary of the Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, preached yesterday morning in Grace Reformed church. He came to this city to make an inspection of the various chapters of the brotherhood and will remain about two weeks, visiting a chapter each night and holding services. Next week a general convention of the chapters in this district will be held, at which he will deliver a discourse on the work of the brotherhood.

The organization now has over 600 chapters throughout the country, in 22 denominations, each denomination having a legislative council represented by three delegates in the federal council.

Mr. Hemner's sermon yesterday morning was based on the words in the Lord's prayer: "Thy Kingdom Come." He said in part:

"The little band of young men who followed the Carpenter Rabbi heard Christ talking with God, and asked him to teach them to pray. The sentences of the prayer are not to be used as a record of a machine, but as the themes on which we may speak of God. 'Thy kingdom come' seems strange to those who conceive of the establishment of the church as the end of Christ's coming. The mission of the church is preparation for the kingdom.

Forerunners of the Kingdom.

"Heavenly lives in earthly places are the forerunners of the kingdom. The kingdom will have come when the lives of men, their dealings with each other and their social organizations have been conformed to the laws of the King—Jesus. Heavenly laws on earthly statue books are not ideals to dream about, but a practical solution of earth's problems. Theocracy and democracy are one when the will of God rules every heart.

"Law is, even today, regarded as force applied to regulate our lives in relation to others. 'You must' receives the accent. The law of love came from heaven to earth through Jesus Christ, who lived it in self-surrender and self-sacrifice and sealed it by His death. His life history is a record of deeds rather than words. He made known the Divine Will by practical philanthropy. He showed that the ability to perform miracles grew out of a living knowledge of God's will and eagerness to do it. He said: 'Greater things than these shall ye do, because I go to My Father.'

"Association with Christ in prayer develops love in our hearts. Belief in Christ grows in a man as he becomes a fellow worker with Him in everyday life. He who would sacrifice for Christ must sacrifice for his fellow man.

The Prayer Will Be Answered.

Christ's prayer, 'Thy kingdom come,' must be answered. We must not be surprised to see it coming. We must not let our lives be an obstacle in the way. Almost every man we meet belongs to some fraternal, benevolent or insurance organization. Seeing a brother's need of thrift, of stimulus, of financial help, men joined with other men to supply it. Even the corporations, the railroads, are feeling the touch of brotherhood and pensioning faithful employes. The great factory is providing for the comforts of its hands, for meals, rest and refreshment.

"The missionary is sent to foreign lands to preach Christ, but to build hospitals and schools as well. God is paying the expenses of foreigners to our land. They come as hewers of wood and drawers of water—they go back as missionaries of the Christian life among men. The apostles of old were called from lowly positions, ignorant and unrefined, that, by divine association, they might be made like unto the Son of God.

"The spirit of patriotism, in its broadest sense, is the spirit of the kingdom. 'I serve' is the motto of the king of England, 'I serve my God, my country and my fellow man,' is the motto of the true Christian."

The last half century's explorations in Medical Science confirm the claims of Dr. D. Jayne for his Expectorant. IT HEALS THE LUNGS.

LOVE HAS BROKEN SAVAGE CUSTOMS

THE REV. J. W. RUSSELL TALKS ON COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE.

Tells How the Wedding Ring, That Was Formerly the Symbol of Capture and Slavery, Is Now Significant of a Beautiful Trinity.

"Love, Courtship and Marriage" was the subject of the Rev. J. G. Russell's sermon last night in the East End Christian church. He said in part:

"There is no institution among us so important in the influence and consequence which spring from it as that of marriage. The history of this institution is both curious and instructive. According to Sir John Lubbock, 'the lowest races have no such institution; true love is almost unknown among them and marriage, in its lowest phases, is by no means a matter of affection and companionship.' Indeed, in the most primitive times, as among savages today, brides were obtained through capture, or were won by feats of wrestling, or by some daring, warlike exploit, or were bought with gold, a custom, by the way, not entirely obsolete in civilized communities.

"To this ruder age of force, when women were regarded as man's property, Herbert Spencer traces the origin of the wedding ring; and what is now regarded as a beautiful token of mutual love was then a symbol of capture and slavery. At a later period, when a nobler and more refined spirit gained sway, marriage became elevated to the dignity of loving union and plighted troth; thus carrying out the divine idea of marriage, in a union so intimate and tender that they are regarded as 'no more twain, but one flesh;' and the ring, which presents to our minds the beautiful trinity, 'love, courtship and marriage,' was placed on the fourth finger of the left hand, because of a beautiful but idle conceit that a vein ran from it directly to the heart.

"Marriage is not true marriage unless it is the consummation of mutual and unselfish love; no other hearts does God join together, for his only band of moral union in this universe is that of love."

"SPIRITUALISM" THE THEME AT THE ALVIN

Prof. Lockwood Contends That Wireless Telegraphy Confirms the Theories of His Faith.

A lecture on "Spiritualism," by Prof. Lockwood of Chicago, a popular expounder of that faith, drew a large crowd to the Alvin theater last night. The audience was about equally divided between the sexes and filled the auditorium. While it was announced through the newspapers that the admission would be free, collectors stood at the doorway where signs were posted bearing the words: "A silver offering is expected."

The service was not elaborate or particularly impressive. They opened with a sacred solo by a young woman who was warmly applauded. During his lecture Prof. Lockwood made use of an electric bell and a telegraph ticker, which had been placed on the stage, to illustrate his argument that the invisible forces of nature that have been developed by science are proof of the invisible communication of spirits with the earth. He asserted that the telegraph and the telephone are convincing evidence that nature is endowed with life and that consciousness continues from this life to the next.

"The communication of departed spirits with the living," he said, "is as much a reality as the feats of wireless telegraphy, which confirm the theories of the spiritualist."

EXPERTS SAY THAT NEW CHURCH IS NEEDED

An Examination of Present Sewickley Presbyterian Edifice Shows Repairs Are Impossible.

The probabilities now are that the present Sewickley Presbyterian church structure will be razed and a handsome new edifice built on the site, at a cost of nearly $100,000. It was stated authoritatively, yesterday, that subscriptions to this amount can be obtained without bringing an indebtedness on the church.

The officials of the church have had the structure thoroughly examined by building experts connected with the Fuller and other reliable companies. They reported the church as not being in danger of collapse, but stated that it would not stand additional repairs or more weight.

A movement is now on foot to have a special congregational meeting called to decide whether or not a new church will be built. The majority of the members favor the erection of a new structure, as the seating capacity of the present one is inadequate.

NO WEBB-MEYER SYNDICATE.

Dr. Webb Denies Its Existence, and Doubts Meyer's Impending Arrest.

BURLINGTON, VT., May 4.—(Special.)—Regarding the reports of the impending arrest of Arthur L. Meyer of the alleged Webb-Meyer syndicate, Dr. W. Seward Webb said tonight through his secretary:

"This report can have no foundation in fact. I have no reason to believe there is any cause for the supreme court causing Mr. Meyer's arrest, and at this time I cannot put any faith in the story. Regarding the Webb-Meyer syndicate, I wish to say that no such organization ever existed. I have no interest or dealings with the Meyer stocks. As to the rumor of John Jacob Astor, Senator Depew and others being drawn into the scheme, these men are competent and concern themselves with only such interests as are desirable to them. These rumors are not founded on fact."

FIRST SERMON OF NEW PASTOR IN ALLEGHENY

The Rev. J. Allison Platts Opened His Ministry There Yesterday.

RECEPTION WAS CORDIAL

"Christian Steadfastness" Was His Theme and Delivered Telling Sermon on Relationship That Should Exist Between Man and God.

The Rev. J. Allison Platts, the new pastor of the Central Presbyterian church of Allegheny, opened his ministry in that church, yesterday morning. Mr. Platts reached here Friday afternoon and will be joined this week by his wife and family. He was given a cordial reception yesterday by the congregation. The theme of his initial sermon was "Christian Steadfastness," in which he painted a beautiful picture of the relationship which should exist between men and their God.

"Co-operation is the key-word in the theme," said Mr. Platts. "Man sows the seed, nurtures the tender blade, reaps the harvest, and to himself appropriates the fruits of his labors. But God, and God alone, dearly beloved, has given the increase. He it is that sends the dew and the rain and causes His sun to shine upon the seed, that man's labors may not be in vain. For how should it be otherwise?

"Unless God build the house they labor in vain who build it. Unless God blesses man's work it is a fruitless one.

Co-operation Essential.

"The whole resolves itself into this: We of this world must co-operate with the workings of God, if we would properly work out our salvation. We must be steadfast in the faith, we must be willing to abide by God's holy law as laid down in the Scriptures. We must, above all, follow this voice within us, know ourselves, ask God to help us so to do. Leave out of the consideration either God's work or man's and famine and starvation result; working together, man with God, man following in the paths trodden by God's followers, peace, plenty and joy everlasting is the end. The man who stands steadfast in the paths of God, who treads ever upward, looks neither to the right nor to the left, but keeps ever and anon the light on on the mountain top before him, is a man of attaining the kingdom of his fathers.

"God so wills it! He has thus planned the accomplishments of his decrees. Christ, the eternal One, became man to make atonement for sin. The ascended Christ, through the Holy Spirit, embodies Himself in the church, his body in the world for the spread of the glad news unto the final triumph of His cause.

Parts of an Infinite Whole.

"The spirit needs the body to express in word, and indeed its highest thoughts and deepest emotions. The body needs the spirit, for without it it is but a corpse. Christ needs the church to reveal to the world the salvation made possible by His death; the church needs the conscious presence of His Holy Spirit, for without this, while it may have the form of Godliness, it denies the power thereof. Either, in themselves, are incomplete; working together the world shall be won to the Redeemer. It is ours, then, to offer to God, completely, our hearts and lives, and, conscious of our mission, manfully shoulder the responsibilities. It is God's to accept our offering, empower our endeavors, and crown them and us with the crown of eternal life."

Lots.

I have about 180 of the choicest lots in East McKeesport—Lots Right in the Center have Risen Here Cheaper Than Those Outside the Borough.

I have about 180 of the choicest lots in East McKeesport that I am going to close out this season. These lots are in the central part of the town; nearly all level, and are on the most prominent streets in the borough. The quick buyer will get the choice of location. I will sell every lot at last year's schedule prices. A number of them are worth double that amount. Every purchaser of East McKeesport lots has made money, and the present season will witness the biggest boom in the history of the town. The United Traction Co. is building a viaduct across the P. R. R. at Wilmarding which will be completed by the first of next July, and will give a 5-cent fare from East McKeesport to Braddock. If you can spare a few dollars a month to pay on a lot, come and see me.

Lots.

I have about 180 of the choicest lots in East McKeesport—Lots Right in the Center have Risen Here Cheaper Than Those Outside the Borough.

I have about 180 of the choicest lots in East McKeesport that I am going to close out this season. These lots are in the central part of the town; nearly all level, and are on the most prominent streets in the borough. The quick buyer will get the choice of location. I will sell every lot at last year's schedule prices. A number of them are worth double that amount. Every purchaser of East McKeesport lots has made money, and the present season will witness the biggest boom in the history of the town. The United Traction Co. is building a viaduct across the P. R. R. at Wilmarding which will be completed by the first of next July, and will give a 5-cent fare from East McKeesport to Braddock. If you can spare a few dollars a month to pay on a lot, come and see me.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cincinnati, O., May 4.—The champion Pirates, fresh from a week's victories in Pittsburgh, arrived in Cincinnati today and succeeded in winning from the Reds this afternoon by a score of 11 to 2. The game was a comedy of errors on the part of the Cincinnati club, and nearly every man on the team made a misplay.

The champions worked like clock work, and Chief Zimmer was the only man to have an error. This did not amount to anything, however, as the man died on the initial bag.

The only other instance where a misplay was made was in the fifth, when Heisman hit to left center. Both Wagner and Clark started for the ball and when they reached it both stopped. The sphere fell clear and Heisman took three bags on it. There was only one out, but he died there.

Such work as holding a man at first with no outs, making sensational catches and general all-round team work aroused the fans to cheering the champions and incited the admiration of all who saw them.

The game was pure, clean baseball, but the comparison between the fielding of the two teams and the hitting when hits were needed showed the fans just what kind of a team Cincinnati has and what they might have.

Game Full of Errors.

Errors from the beginning to the end was what the Reds dished to the champion Pittsburh team this afternoon.

While it is doubtful whether the game would have been changed with both teams playing an errorless game, yet the 12,000 spectators that attended the game were sorely disgusted with almost every man on the red team and did not mind giving vent to their feelings in the least. The man who who received the major part of this demonstration was Capt. Corcoran.

The error making feeling seemed to be contagious, and every player, with the exception of Dobbs, Hoy and Heisman had a mark or two tallied up against him in the last column of the score book.

Davis sent a liner down to second in the first and Beck fumbled it, giving him a base. Clark sacrificed, but got to the base on Beckley's fumble. Conroy sacrificed both men and Wagner got a single bringing both men in.

Pirates Start to Score.

Bransfield singled to short and Ritchey sent one down toward Steiney. He picked the ball up, stepped on third, and threw the horse hide clear over Beckley's head, allowing Bransfield to score and putting Ritchey on third. The latter scored on Leach's single to left, thus giving the Pirates a lead of four runs almost before the game began and all on account of three errors.

In the fourth the fun again started. Ritchey singled, Leach sacrificed, but got his base when Noodles Hahn fumbled the ball. Zimmer sacrificed and Tannehill lined out a home run to left field bringing in all the men in.

Davis went out to Hoy and Clark got a life on Crawford's misjudge and went to third. He came home on Steinfeldt's fumble and Wagner went out trying to steal second. At this juncture Heisman was put in the box, and in the sixth the champions fell onto him.

Reds Took a Brace.

Zimmer got a hit, but fled out to Hoy. Davis sent a swift one down to Corcoran, and it looked like a double play, but the captain after getting his hands on it let the ball drop and Zimmer scored. Clark drew a base on balls, but Conroy went out to Beck. Wagner singled and both the men scored.

This ended the Pirates' scoring, but they had more than enough to win. In the seventh the Reds took a brace. With one man out, Steinfeldt singled and Peitz did likewise. Heisman fooled out to Zimmer and Hoy singled to right, bringing in Steinfeldt. Dobbs died easily.

In the eighth Beckley singled, Crawford singled to center, but went out on Beck's fly to right, which Davis muffed, but threw to second in time to catch Crawford. Corcoran singled and Beckley scored and the next two men went out easily. In the ninth there was nothing doing on either side. The score:

RUNNING TRACKS ARE BADLY NEEDED

LOCAL SCHOOL ATHLETES HANDICAPPED IN THEIR TRAINING.

High School and Shadyside Students Were Promised Good Cinder Paths Last Fall and Think They Should Have Them to Train on Now.

There is deep discontent among the athletes of the Shadyside academy and the Pittsburgh High school at the present time over the failure of the schools to provide suitable running tracks for the use of the students. With the most important interscholastic field and track meet that the Pittsburgh district has ever harbored fast approaching, the student athletes are greatly handicapped without good training facilities and do not view with favor the long trip to Schenley park in order to reach a track.

Not only are the schools handicapped in preparation for the coming meet, but Shadyside, though having some strong runners, was prevented sending a relay team to the recent Philadelphia competition because the academy had no track and could not hope to compete successfully untrained against the crack eastern schools enjoying every facility of track and training advantage.

Both High school and Shadyside athletes were led to understand last fall that they would have tracks this season, but these have been waiting patiently until now it is too late to get the full benefit even if the tracks were started. The students of both schools claim that there is money sufficient in the treasury at hand raised for the benefit of athletics and that they cannot understand why it is not used. High school athletes were not only given to understand last fall that they would have the track, but were again assured of it this spring, but they have been patiently waiting in vain. The boys say there should be about $1,500 in the treasury for athletics. All of the local schools claim they will be greatly handicapped in the Cleveland and other visiting schools which have the advantages of a good track.

One of the most promising candidates at High school, and one of whom much is expected in the coming meet, is Henry Nickel, the star of the school basketball season. Nickel is showing strength in both the hammer throw and shot put and the running broad jump.

Linton, English Cycler, Won 80-Kilometre Race from American Rider.

PARIS, May 4.—At the bicycle contests in the Paris des Princes today, Tom Linton, the English bicyclist, won the 80-kilometer race in 1 hour, 0 minutes and 50 3-5 seconds.

This is the world's record for that distance. Harry Elkes, the American rider, was 1 1-2 laps behind the winner, while Rohl, the German, was third.

Linton led the contestants all the way except for a short time at 60 Kilometers, when Rohl was in the lead.

Little Richmond's Baseball Team.

CLAYSVILLE, PA., May 4.—(Special.)—Claysville will have its baseball team in line in a few days, and a manager will be elected. The team will be made up as follows: Anderson, pitcher; Hughes, catcher; if Miller, first; G. McConnell, second; R. Phillips, third; J. Stewart, short; G. Mills, W. Porter, C. McConnell and W. Mathews, fielders.

Notes of the Game.

Pittsburgh's pitchers appear to be well up in the batting list of twirlers of the league. Tannehill had a home run and a pretty single yesterday out of twice up.

With the exception of Dobbs, Hoy and Heisman every Cincinnati player had an error yesterday.

Chief Zimmer made the Pirates' only error yesterday. The old Roman had five putouts and made a single at bat.

Conroy put up a somewhat sensational fielding game at short yesterday, accepting seven chances without an error.

Bell Weather Wagner had his usual two hits. He also accepted two chances in center and did not have an error.

If John T. Brush does not spend a little money for players and strengthen the Hamilton organization he may have a fight for the tail end with Frank de Hass Robison's Cardinals.

The Reds seemed to have no trouble hitting Tannehill yesterday, but it was a case of where superior team work and gilt-edged support won.

Even Jake Beckley bobbed up with an error. It must certainly have been a bad day for all the Reds.

Clarke and Wagner made a queer play in the fifth when the former muffed Heisman's fly to left center and neither player touched the ball.

The Cincinnati fans showed their disapproval of the Queen City Bad team by their demonstrations yesterday.

Detroit, May 4.—Joss was invincible today and not a hit was made off his delivery until the ninth inning. Detroit's only run followed Bradley's error in the ninth, which gave Holmes a life.

Casey and Harley both followed with singles, scoring him. Cleveland's first run was the result of Elberfeld's fumble of Pickering's grounder in the third and two base hits by Pickering and Harvey in the eighth scored the second one. Score:

BASEBALL PLAYER WAS ELECTROCUTED.

Capt. Shultz of New York Semi-Professional Team Died from Touching a Live Wire.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 4.—The champion season of the Syracuse City Baseball league opened today at Athletic field with a fatality. Capt. J. G. Shultz, of the Erminie, a semi-professional team, was shocked to death by an electric current.

Two games were scheduled, the second to be between the Erminies and Pastimes. During the progress of the first game Schultz with a number of players was seated directly back of a wire screening in the grandstand back of the catcher's position.

Schultz touched the screen and fell back dead, his arms being badly burned. An examination of the screen showed that it was charged with electricity, the current being conveyed to it by two disconnected telegraph wires which had fallen across a heavily charged trolley feed wire half a mile from the grounds. The game in progress was stopped immediately and postponed, as was also the other game.

NEW YORK TEAM PLAYING WELL

GIANTS ARE SAID TO COMPARE FAVORABLY WITH PIRATES.

Champions Have Best Corps of Pitchers, but Freedman's Players Will Make a Strong Front When They Appear on Diamond Here.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—From the very beginning of the baseball season the New York club has commanded attention by reason of the unexpectedly strong game of the players. The team was badly riddled when the American league had finished with it, although there were some players who jumped to the other league that Andrew Freedman had made up his mind had served their time in New York, and would do better elsewhere. The jumping of Hickman and Taylor was regretted. Outside of their departure no particular sorrow was felt.

With Bean on the team, his release having been purchased from the Rochester management, New York has an infield far superior to anything that has played in the city in years. It is very strong in the outfield, and the work of the pitchers has been a surprise to everybody. Although presumed to be weak at the bat the team is more than meeting expectations. In base running and general head work, both in the field and at bat, the players are 50 per cent stronger than any team in New York for 10 years.

The nine compares favorably with the Pittsburghs. Possibly the champions have the better of New York in the matter of pitchers, inasmuch as they have so many good men, but take the teams, man for man, and New York is better able to make a good front against the Pittsburghs than in any year that Pittsburgh and New York have been in the National league together. ARSENAL HAD ADVANTAGE IN THE WEIGHT

Metropolitan Winner However, Is Believed to Be More Than Ordinary.

IMPOST WAS 90 POUNDS

Expert Turfmen Claim He Has Yet to Establish His Claim to Greatness and Will Not Rank With Other Winners of the Event.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, May 4.—Whether the winner of the Metropolitan handicap of 1902 is more than an ordinary colt was the occasion of prolonged debates today in resorts frequented by turf men and patrons of racing.

It was generally agreed that he had shown himself to be a good horse, but had yet to demonstrate such quality as would entile him to be classed as great.

He had an advantage in the matter of weight over every other 3-year-old that started, and from that it was argued that his performance was nothing more than should reasonably be expected of any moderate thoroughbred of his age and did not rank him with Voter, Bowling Brook and Filigrane, 3-year-olds which were respective winners of the event in 1897, 1898 and 1899.

Voter carried 99 pounds, Bowling Brook 103 and Filigrane 102. Arsenal's impost was only 90. Arsenal, however, had hosts of admirers who championed his right to distinguished recognition.

The manner in which he wond was considered sufficient to establish a claim of greatness. Smoke, a fleet 3-year-old mare, with 100 pounds on her back, went out to make the pace, and persons familiar with her great speed, believed she would not be caught until near the end of the mile, if at all.

But Arsenal dashed after her, caught her before a quarter had been finished, raced her into submission within a half and then took the track and held it to the end.

One experienced trained analyzed the race by saying: "I had my watch on Smoke and Arsenal as they went down the backstretch and know they did it at an awful pace. The mare could not stand it, but it didn't appear to affect the colt anywhere in the mile. Regardless of weight, to my mind, the business-like manner in which the winner did his work makes me like him."

HOMING PIGEON RACE.

First Fly of Old Birds of North Side Fanciers' Club.

The first old bird race of the North Side Homing club for the season of 1902 was flown from Coshocton, O., yesterday. The distance is 100 miles, air line, and about 75 birds, owned by five members of the club, were entered.

The birds were liberated at 9:40 o'clock yesterday morning, and up until 6 o'clock last night over 80 per cent of the number liberated had reported. The weather was clear and a good start was made. The birds encountered a light storm a few miles out of the city limits, which held them back slightly.

The time made on the first fly was of the record-breaking order, and the following averages have been compiled from the birds reporting first:

Bully Boy, owned by J. Devilns, 1,498 yards per minute; Fancy, owned by W. Flack, 1,447 yards per minute; Bob White, Jr., owned by W. Schnaufer, 1,447 yards per minute; Black Joe, owned by A. Henley, 1,417 yards per minute; Gates at Last, owned by J. Crummie, 1,403 yards per minute.

Weekly Review of Market Quotations

PITTSBURGH PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Flour Market Firm—More Advances Made in Provisions. Potatoes Are Easier.

Changes made in quotations last week were all in the direction of lower figures, except in millfeed. In one or two lines the reductions were considerable. Corn, which suffered the most, declined fully 2 cents from the highest point, and oats went off a half cent. Easier conditions in the west brought about these cuts, receipts here, particularly of corn, being moderate. Millfeed is higher than it was a week ago, while timothy hay is selling at a wider range, made necessary by the fact that some offerings were made at lower figures than quoted last Monday.

While there is not a great deal of difference in flour prices, the market is firmer, and quotations, which were barely steady a few days ago, are now very strong. Mills have made advances, causing jobbers to maintain a much firmer hold on figures quoted than was the case at the beginning of the week, when concessions were not unknown. Sugar declined 5 points, but since that time the raw material is higher, and it is rumored that a reaction in refined is likely to come if raws hold steady. Navy beans are strong, and while market conditions warrant a range of $1 @$1 25 as actual value, some houses are still selling below these figures.

Canned goods and dried fruits are not changed in quotations, but dealers report a stronger market for evaporated fruits, which may possibly result in local advances.

Potatoes are still well up in price, though less strong than at the opening of last week. Very heavy arrivals having caused figures to weaken a little. New southern potatoes are lower. Cucumbers, beets, parsley, string beans, tomatoes and asparagus are all lower than they were a week ago. Radishes were stronger on Saturday, owing to some failing off in supplies. Fresh vegetables are now coming in quite freely, and Carolina strawberries are in fairly liberal supply. Oranges and lemons are firmer than they were, and prices are slightly higher.

The reduction in the price of butter last Monday had the effect of turning buyers' attention toward pure butter once more, and the demand has increased considerably. Jobbers are predicting a steady market for this week without change of prices. Cheese is in heavy request, consumption being unusually large and supplies not more than sufficient to fill orders. Eggs are steady but unchanged. Dealers assert that while there has been some weakening in prices in the country eggs now have to be candled, and losses from spoiled stock keep actual cost up to where it has been for several weeks.

Poultry is scarce. Receipts of live have been very small, and demand is cured for only because it is also light. Chickens have been high for so long that the consumptive demand has been reduced to a low point, from which it is not expected to react until prices are brought down by an increase of supplies, and there seems to be no immediate prospect of this. Spring lambs and May are generally good months for poultry sales, but this year trade is not up to the average.

Another advance was made Saturday in boneless boiled hams. California hams, shoulders and breakfast bacon.

M'LAURIN NOW IN FULL REVOLT AGAINST PARTY

Issues Address Cutting Loose from South Carolina Primary System.

HE WILL BE INDEPENDENT

Bitter Words Against His Colleague Tillman and the Tyranny of the Machine for Which the Pitchfork Statesman Is Responsible.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, D. C., May 4.—Senator John L. McLaurin of South Carolina has declared fresh war upon his colleague, Senator B. F. Tillman and the Democratic machine over which that pitchfork statesman rules. In an address issued tonight to the people of the state Mr. McLaurin traces the history of the present primary, which he characterizes as having been perverted into a yoke of tyranny for disfranchising the better element of the Democracy. He says in part:

"Unfortunately in South Carolina, for nearly 40 years we have been unable to have two parties, for fear of negro domination, and for ten years after the Hampton revolution in 1876 our people took no interest in public affairs beyond maintaining a 'white man's government.' About the year 1890, however, began what was known as the 'farmers' movement,' which was nothing more than an instinctive effort on the part of the people to preserve the principle of self-government. With Shell, Irby, Norris, Tillman, Donaldson and others I contributed what I could toward its success, simply because I felt that agitation was better than stagnation, and it is passing strange in that connection that the leader of that movement, B. F. Tillman, was then denounced, as I am now denounced, for attempting to Mahonize the state.

Freedom of Other Days.

"The freedom of thought and action, however, which followed the farmers' movement, opened the doors for every white man and every negro who voted for Hampton in 1876, and they could advocate whatever views they cared to express, provided only that they took an oath to support the nominees of the primary election."

Mr. McLaurin then recounted his own career in congress and his independence, which led him frequently to break from party leading strings on great issues. Continuing, he said:

"I have ever maintained this independence of thought and action. Last summer, recognizing my responsibility to the people, there being no campaign in the state, I announced my intention of going before them for the purpose of discussing these national issues. I was immediately and violently assailed for advocating Republican doctrines, and branded as a Republican in Democratic disguise. The state Democratic executive committee met and, under the dictation of my colleague in the senate, formally declared that I was not a Democrat, which formed the basis for similar action on the part of the Democratic caucus of the United States senate.

Not a Personal Issue.

"Since that time the war against me has persistently waged. The policy of my opponents has been to belittle the real issues into a personal quarrel between 'Tillman and McLaurin.' This issue I am not willing to accept, as I do not purpose to be influenced in my public course by personal spleen or petty jealousy.

"Now, the proposition of my political enemies is to exclude me from the primary as a candidate and to exclude all candidates for office who entertain my views and thus prevent the people from hearing me and from hearing them in justification of my course and in advocacy of the absorbing public measures now confronting the American people. I am absolutely convinced and forewarned of this purpose to exclude me and my friends, because I have read the speech of Senator Tillman, the acknowledged dictator of the Democratic machine of South Carolina, delivered at Manning, in which he directs a revision of the rules and form of oath of the party for the purpose of excluding myself and friends from participation in the primary. I present the suggested exception of myself, for of course I would not make my race for the senate or proclaim my views under conditions which were not equally applicable to those who entertain and advocate my views. I have an abiding faith that it will yet be shown that the dictator of the machine is not the exponent of the views of the majority of our people.

Primary System Denounced.

"The primary system adopted in our state through the farmers movement has been prostituted and perverted into a political machine for the purpose of excluding all candidates who are not in full accord with the views and wishes of the dictator. The vital question, therefore, is, will the people of the state submit to this political tyranny and join in this unholy and unpatriotic work of disfranchising the intelligent people and excluding them from our elections?

"The suppression of free speech and independence of action in voting by such means renders it impossible for any self-respecting citizen, holding my views, to become a candidate in the Democratic primary in South Carolina. It is apparent that the system has been warped and twisted so as to serve the base purposes of throttling free speech, free thought, and liberty of action. The primary system in South Carolina has been sacrificed upon the alter of partisanship and personal malignity, and has, therefore, become unpatriotic and useless and should be ignored and finally repudiated by our people, with a purpose similar to my own, to look hopefully to the results of a fair and just general election under out state and national laws.

Repudiates the System.

"A party yoke has been placed upon our people, and it has become too galling for further endurance; and yet I realize that many of my loyal friends would even once more hold in check their resolution not to again enter our system of primary elections, in order to again vote for me, but I have reached the point where I will not subject them to subscribing to an oath to support men and measures which do not represent their views upon the issues facing the American people today."

TERRA COTTA MAKERS STRIKE.

Skilled Workmen Reinforce Laborers Who Ask Wage Increase.

ST. LOUIS, May 4.—One thousand molders, pressers, bolsterers and laborers employed at the firebrick and terra cotta works of Cheltenham, in the outskirts of this city, are on a strike.

The skilled men struck from sympathy for the laborers, who demand an increase of 15 cents a day. The firms involved are the St. Louis Terra Cotta Company, the Wickes Terra Cotta Company, the Laclede Firebrick Company, the Missouri Firebrick Company and the Mitchell Clay Manufacturing Company.

REPUBLICANS WILL END THEIR SILENCE

EVENTS IN PHILIPPINES FORCE THEM INTO DEBATE.

Administration Policy Will Find Vigorous Defenders—Gardener Resolution May Be Revived—House in Favor of Admission of Three New States.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—Republican senators this week will relieve the Democrats of the necessity of supplying all the speakers in the senate on the Philippine government bill. The event of last week caused them to decide to take part in the debate and they will lead off when the bill shall be laid before the senate at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee on the Philippines, will open for them with a set speech in support of the administration's Philippine policy, with incidental reference to Maj. Gardener's report and other special phases of the Philippine question. Other Republican senators who have indicated a purpose to address the senate on the pending questions are Messrs. Foraker, Spooner, Burton, McComas and Platt of Connecticut. There probably also will be other Republican speakers.

The Democratic members of the committee on Philippines have no fixed plans except to have the debate on the bill continue for the present. They decline to estimate the time necessary to conclude consideration of the bill.

Appropriation Bill as a Filler.

Other measures which will receive attention during the week are the sundry civil appropriation bill, and the bill providing for the opening to settlement of the Rosebud Indian reservation in South Dakota. The reservation question has priority of claim to consideration in the morning hour of each day, and the appropriation bill will be used to "fill in" when no one is prepared to speak on either that bill or the Philippine bill.

The resolution providing for the recall of Maj. Gardener lost its position of advantage Saturday and is now on the calendar, but the chances are that it will be revived and that it will receive further attention.

The principal feature of the program in the house this week will be the bill to place three new stars in the American flag. The omnibus bill for the admission of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona to statehood, will be called up on Tuesday. The friends of the bill do not desire protracted debate on it and will try to secure a vote on that day.

Apparent Majority for Statehood.

There is considerable opposition to the bill on the Republican side on the ground that the territories are not yet fitted for statehood; but the friends of the bill entertain no doubt of its passage. The Democrats in caucus agreed to give it their united support, and at least 60 Republican votes are counted on.

After the statehood bill is disposed of war claims will be given attention, and then the naval appropriation bill will be taken up.

Three important measures of general legislation—the Hell financial bill terminating the coinage of silver dollars, the Ray anti-anarchy bill and the Shattuc bill codifying and extending the immigration laws—are to be taken up whenever opportunity occurs, the rules committee having decided Saturday that these measures should have early attention. No time is set for them, but the decision of the rules committee will bring them forward whenever appropriation bills and special orders are lacking.

UNITED STATES STILL LEADS IN EXPORT VALUES

This Despite Failure of Corn Crop and Depression in the Price of Cotton.

UNITED KINGDOM IS NEXT

This Country Shows a Greater Excess of Exports Over Imports Than All Other Nations Combined—Balance Against Most Powers.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
605 Fifteenth St., N. W.
WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.

The United States maintains its position at the head of the world's exporting nations, despite the temporary reduction i nthe value of exports due to the shortage in corn available for exportation. The export figures for the nine months ending with March, as shown by the report of the treasury bureau of statistics, indicate a drop of $58,681,957 in the total value of exports.

When it is considered that the value of corn exported fell, owing to the shortage in the corn supply, $52,000,000 below that for the corresponding period of last year, and that cotton, owing solely to a decrease in price, fell $12,000,000 below the exports of the same period of last year, the entire decrease is more than accounted for.

The figures of domestic imports for the nine months ending with March are: From the United States, $1,062,432,158; United Kingdom, $1,009,408,457.

One Cause of Confusion.

The fact that the commercial and fiscal years of the various countries differ in dates of termination renders a comparison by parallel years difficult; but the bureau of statistics, in its statement of exports of various countries, gives the monthly average of each during the year or the portion of the year which its latest figures cover. By this process it is practicable to show the relation of the various countries in the supply which they furnish to the markets of the world. This analysis shows that the average monthly exportation of domestic merchandise from the United States exceeds that of any other nation; that the United Kingdom stands second; Germany, third; France, fourth; the Netherlands, fifth, and British India, sixth in the list of exporting nations. On the other hand, the list of importing nations shows that the United Kingdom stands first; Germany, second; France, third; the United States, fourth; the Netherlands, fifth, and Belgium sixth, in the relative demands upon the markets of the world.

One especially marked characteristic of the commerce of the United States, in comparison with that of other countries, is its large excess of exports over imports. Of the 30 countries whose average monthly imports and exports are shown by the bureau of statistics, only 12 show an excess of exports over imports.

Where Exports Predominate.

These 12 countries are Argentina, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Egypt, British India, Mexico, Russia, Uruguay and the United States. The average monthly excess of exports over imports in the case of India amounts to about $8,000,000, and Russia also about $9,000,000, while that of the entire list of countries which show an excess of exports over imports (exclusive of the United States) amounts to but $38,000,000 a month, while from the United States alone the excess of exports over imports is $42,637,127 a month.

The following table shows the average monthly imports and exports of the principal countries of the world during that part of the fiscal year for which figures have been received by the bureau of statistics:

THE CHINESE TAKE KINDLY TO NOVELTIES

American Goods Preferred to Any Made in Other Foreign Countries. Obstacles to Enteprise.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—"American goods have an established reputation in China and are preferred to all other foreign articles." This statement appeared in an interesting extract from commercial relations of the United States for 1901, which was given out today by Frederic Emory, chief of the bureau of foreign commerce of the state department. The Japanese, it is said, are alive to the situation with regard to American goods and put many cheap and inferior imitations of our products on the market in China.

Novelties of all kinds find ready sale in China, the wealthy classes in particular taking pride in purchasing the latest products of ingenuity. Their yamens are fond of phonographs, magic lanterns, music boxes, cameras and other articles which appeal to their curiosity and work for their amusement. Watches and clocks are extensively sold.

The Chinese procure their water supply from wells by the primitive method of attaching a jar or bucket to the end of a long bamboo pole and dipping it out. The substitution of pumps, not too expensive, it is said, would appeal to the practical sense of the Chinese.

American capital is being invested in various enterprises in China. An American company has appealed for admission to run a line of passenger and freight steamers between Canton, Heng-Chow and Hong-Kong. Concessions for mining gold, silver, copper and antimony ores have been granted by the board of mines to American, French and German parties.

Foreigners who go to China to manage industrial enterprises encounter serious obstacles. According to a decree, the Chinese retain controlling interests in railroads and other concessions. They get beyond their depth, however, when they attempt to manage such enterprises, and, therefore, secure foreign superintendents for their iron works, textile mills and agricultural colleges.

Enough money it is said in conclusion, has been expended in China during the last 40 years in introducing various western enterprises to have made them a great success if they had been left under the management of foreigners.
